—By Arthur Brisbane—

(Copyright, 1922, by Star Co.)

George F. Baker, eighty-two years old yesterday, is still working regularly, directs as many corporations as the law will allow, and owns many things.

Well informed financiers say that Mr. Baker is the second richest man in the United States, which means in the world. Others say that the second in wealth is Mr. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury.

John D. Rockefeller, resting while his son works, enjoying life and contemplation, is declared by all to be the richest. Mr. Rockefeller, far beyond eighty, and Mr. Baker prove that it is possible to play the American game successfully and live to be old—in spite of your contrary opinions.

You may ask how rich the richest and the second richest men are in this world. Nobody can tell you; the richest and second richest couldn't tell you.

How can you estimate the value of a railroad when that value increases as rapidly as children are born along the right of way? How can you estimate the value of oil wells, gas pockets, mines under the earth? Any one of the three, Rockefeller, Mellon or Baker, is richer than were all the rich men in America combined at the time when George Washington was the richest of them.

Any one of our three richest could buy what Washington had and not miss the change.

There is religious war in Ireland, and it breaks out here and there in Mexico. It is the kind of brutality that men get rid of slowly, and makes appropriate these lines that W. V. Byars of St. Louis quotes from James Freeman Clarke's "Essentials and Non-Essentials of Religion":

"We shall look back from a higher world on our present civilization and on our present Christianity, as we now look back on the monstrous strife and perturbations of past geologic ages. We may seem to ourselves hereafter as the Saurians and Trilobites seem to us now."

The doctors say that if Rosa does not recover, Josefa also must die. It is impossible to separate them without causing the death of both. If one dies, the other must go with her. Apart from natural affection, each of the sisters is intensely interested in the welfare of the other. No doubt or pretense about that.

Those Siamese Twins are not more dependent upon each other than the various white races in the world that have been doing all they could to kill each other and weaken each other, until they are compelled to make humiliating treaties with Asia and restore the Turks to power in Europe. It would help some statesmen if they could be made to sit beside the Siamese Twins, in the Chicago Hospital, and think for awhile.

Miss Emma Goldman, who used to tell the United States that government is wrong and unnecessary, and that revolution is a blessing, has revised some of her opinions after two years in Russia.

She has discovered that government, language, trees and human bodies GROW. They are not built to order. Miss Goldman is shocked to find, what a woman so well-read should have known, that you cannot eliminate power. If you take it from one hand, it passes to another. If you take it from the Czar, it goes to Lenin and Trotzky. If you take it from them, it goes to the next powerful enough to seize it.

European diplomacy is interested in the visit of the Belgian King to Rome. The Pope will send automobiles to meet the King and Queen, who have been told by the Pope to proceed to the Vatican and call upon him immediately upon their arrival in Rome.

Hitherto it has been customary for royal visitors to be met at the railroad station by the Italian King and to be greeted by him first. The Pope does not leave the Vatican. This order of the Pope, confined by his own will to the Vatican, is especially interesting, as the Belgian King and Queen are coming to arrange for the engagement of their son to the daughter of the Italian King.

MISUSE OF FUNDS IS REVEALED BY ALLEN

Inside Story of Wrecked Trust Companies Given to Legislature in His Report

How millions of dollars of the people's money was squandered by officials of the five closed Boston trust companies, who employed dummies and straw men and ruthlessly violated banking laws to cover up all their private speculations and losses was today revealed by Bank Commissioner Joseph C. Allen in a special report to the Legislature.

Allen told for the first time the "inside story" of the wrecking of the five banks in a report of eighty pages, loaded with facts, figures and charges, revealing an orgy of reckless and criminal misuse of public funds probably unparalleled in the history of the country.

Among the more important statements and charges made by Allen were these:

That the wrecking of the Fidelity Trust Company entailed a loss of $1,000,000.

That the loss in the Cosmopolitan Trust Company due to bad loans was $5,000,000.

That doubtful loans approximating $6,000,000 were made by the Cosmopolitan Trust Company to corporations which were dominated by Max Mitchell, president of the bank, or his relatives.

That losses on bad loans in the Tremont Trust Company will exceed $2,500,000, and that the liabilities will exceed the assets by at least $1,000,000.

That the Tremont Trust Company was threatened with closing by Allen if necessary unless a sale to Augustus L. Thorndike was consummated.

H. P. NAWN, CLUBMAN SUBWAY KING, DIES

End Comes Suddenly to Prominent Contractor in New York Town

Henry P. Nawn, head of the Hugh Nawn Contracting Company and known as the man who took a more active part than anyone else in Boston in the building of the subway tunnels through the city, died suddenly today in Gilboa, N. Y., according to dispatches received at the offices of his company.

Nawn was in the New York town supervising the construction of a huge water supply dam, which will create a reservoir for the city of New York.

He is survived by a widow, Mrs. Elizabeth A. Nawn, and by four sons: Hugh, Henry P. Nawn, Jr., Leo and Gaston. The Nawn residence is at No. 181 Beaver street, Roxbury.

In addition to his extensive work on the tunnels and subways of the local traction system, he was during the war connected with the construction of the shipways and docks at Hog Island.

Several years ago he was made a Knight of St. Gregory by Pope Pius X. He was a member of the Exchange and Engineers Clubs, and was about sixty-three years old.

Mr. Nawn might have written, after his name "Subway Master" on account of his tremendous share in building Greater Boston's mighty subway system.

But, asked if he had built this or that stretch of work, he would in all probability have replied: "My men built it." That was his way of telling it.

His men, under his masterful direction, carried out some big building operations.

He was graduated from the English High School in 1879 and joined his father in the Hugh Nawn Construction Company. The firm, of which Harry P. Nawn became president, still bears the father's name.

In the early days, when young Harry Nawn went in with his father, the concern did business in a small way and kept only a few teams. A $10,000 contract was a serious proposition.

HIS FIRST BIG CONTRACT.

In 1890 Harry P. Nawn took a $1,000,000 contract preparing the ground for the Wachusett dam at Clinton. That was the job that changed over a stretch of territory eight miles long and two miles wide, moved six big mills, eight school houses, five churches and 500 dwellings and simply wiped out the town of Boylston. Mr. Nawn and his men were three years at this work and made such a name for the Hugh Nawn Construction Company that big contracts came flocking to the man

GERMANY REJECTS CONTROL BY ALLIES

Berlin, March 28.—Chancellor Wirth, addressing the Reichstag this afternoon rejected the demand of the Allies for financing control of Germany. The Chancellor reminded the Allies that they had promised in the Treaty of Versailles not to touch Germany's right to self determination. The Chancellor said he would continue the "policy of fulfillment."

—A Paris dispatch to the Matin says that the Allies are preparing the indemnity demands of the Entente.

COMMISSIONER CURTIS DROPS DEAD.

Police Commissioner Edwin Upton Curtis dropped dead in his home, No. 131 Bay State Road, Back Bay, shortly after 2 o'clock today. He left Police Headquarters at 1:30 to go to luncheon, complaining that he felt an attack of indigestion coming on. His secretary, James H. Devlin, and Superintendent of Police Michael H. Crowley advised him to stay at home for the afternoon, but he declared that he would return.

On arriving home, however, the attack became more serious and a physician was called. The commissioner died shortly after the arrival of the doctor. He was appointed commissioner late in 1918.

Mrs. H. K. White Says Husband Was Too Friendly With Another

Testimony that Harry K. White, wealthy Boston clubman and former partner in the banking firm of Lee, Higginson & Co., was too friendly with Miss Catherine Fitch of Pepperell, and that his wife detected him with her at her father's home, was offered in the East Cambridge Court today by Mrs. Nora K. White in her suit for separate support.

Mrs. White, who declares she can not live in the style to which she is accustomed on $16,000 a year, and who charges her husband with deserting her, declared that White's friendship with Miss Fitch began in 1918, while she and her husband were living at their Summer estate in Pepperell.

White, she said, went to see Miss Fitch's father on a matter of business, and then became acquainted with the daughter, whose age is given as forty-two years. After making Miss Fitch's acquaintance, Mrs. White said, her husband was with her constantly.

"Once I saw them together in her home," she said. "My husband was playing with her in a very facetious manner."

Mrs. White added that her husband had been cruel to her, and that he had labored under the delusion that she was not showing him the proper amount of affection and love. Once, she said, he told her, before her small daughter Harriett, that "it would take 1,000 years to undo the wrongs you have done me." When she asked for an explanation, she said, he was unable to furnish one.

"He had a will of iron, a lot of

Killed Accuser That He Might Die on Gallows

Fayetteville, Ga., March 28.—Weyman Cofield died here today, a sacrifice to truth.

Cofield was stabbed in the court room after he had testified that he and his uncle, Genus Cofield, had committed several burglaries. They had just been sentenced to serve three to five years in the penitentiary.

"I'd rather hang than spend five years in the penitentiary," shouted Genus Cofield, as he plunged a dagger into the breast of his nephew.

SHOOTS AT TWO MEN, KILLS HERSELF

Fall River, March 28.—Several hundred women shoppers, crowded about the doors of the Stiger-Cox department store at Spring and South Main streets, were thrown into a panic today when an armed woman attempted to shoot down two young men, failed, and then shot herself dead on the sidewalk.

She crumpled with a moan as a score of women fainted, several ran shrieking up the street and others fought to break through the locked doors of the store to safety.

The woman was Mrs. Sarah Snell, fifty years old, of No. 353 Ames street.

She was beyond medical aid when carried to Brady's drug store across the street.

The young men she fired upon, and narrowly missed, were brothers, Harry and George Bloom of No. 253 South Main street.

A bullet punctured Harry's hat. George, who ran as the first shot was fired, was not struck.

According to Harry Bloom, the first youth fired upon by Mrs. Snell, he had been keeping company with her daughter up to two weeks ago.

"Then we broke our engagement," he said. "Since then I have been in

Blow on Head and Not Moonshine Blamed by Relatives of Victim

Henry Gordon, letter carrier of Somerville, who died at the Haymarket Square Relief Hospital Saturday, was murdered, and was not the victim of moonshine whiskey, as reported at the time, according to his brothers, former Police Captain Herbert Gordon of Cambridge and Patrolman Edward Gordon of the Cambridge force.

"My brother was killed by a blow on the head," declared Patrolman Gordon today. "We are satisfied that blow was dealt him and was not the result of a fall.

"Medical Examiner Magrath has found that the skull was fractured and there was no sign of alcoholism."

Dr. Magrath refused to affirm or deny that Gordon was slain. He merely said, "I have nothing to say."

This was the policy he adopted in the case of Pauline Virginia Clark who died of poison in her Back Bay apartment, and of the facts regarding which the police were kept in ignorance for thirty-six hours.

the postoffice department. He was not and never has been a drinking man. To accuse him of having met his death in that way is a stigma his family intends to have cleared away."

John S. Foley, president, and Charles Norton, secretary of the Letter Carriers' Association, also expressed their anxiety to have the mystery surrounding the death of Gordon cleared at once.

As long as the charge that he died of alcoholism hangs over his name it is impossible for the association to pay to his widow the $1,000 due her from the benefit fund of the organization.

"We want this matter cleared up, and the fact that he died from the effect of a fractured skull proved beyond all doubt," said Foley today.

"We shall make no attempt to find his murderer to bring him to justice. That is a matter for Gordon's family to attend to. But we are concerned in seeing that Mrs. Gordon gets what is lawfully here if her husband was killed."

Gordon was picked up Friday night in Sherman square, Charlestown, by Patrolman Montague of the Charlestown police and was booked at Station 15 on a drunkenness charge.

Immediately after being booked he was sent to the Relief Hospital for treatment. There a stomach pump was used, and then he was taken back to the police station. Later he was again sent to the hospital. He was dead when taken from the ambulance.

"This talk of my brother having been drunk is absurd," said Patrolman Gordon today.

Then he went to a cobbler's, where in the second place he left home Friday, dressed in his shabbiest clothing, and with only a dollar to buy a toothbrush. He bought the toothbrush, having fifty cents for it.

"In the first place, he never drank. He left a pair of shoes to be repaired. When he was picked up fifty cents was found in his pocket.

"He had not been drinking. He was killed, and we are going to prove it."

City's Radiophone Is Missing; Work for Sherlocko!

MISSING — One radiophone from the rostrum of the Old Aldermanic Chamber at City Hall, now occupied by the Boston Commercial and Industrial Bureau. Information will be appreciated by the general public.

The radio apparatus was installed last week. Saturday it was dedicated before a large audience, which included several mayors.

It is said that some of the pieces were removed on Sunday, and then a little of it each day since until today when the last of it was carried away.

It is also said that the machine has been sent to a clubroom, so that the members may have a concert all their own.

Mrs. Snell is the wife of a well known flour agent.

She approached the junction of Spring and South Main streets just before 9 o'clock. A sale in the Steiger-Cox Department Store advertised for a week had drawn a great crowd of women shoppers. They were congregated upon the sidewalk waiting for the store to open when suddenly a gun barked and they turned to see a gray-haired woman pumping a gun at two youths turning to flee.

Instantly there was a herding of panic-stricken women. Then followed two more shots. Women trembled, a score slipped to the sidewalk in a faint and then there was a break as several fled up the street, while others fought to break through the door.

Suddenly the woman stopped firing, hesitated a second and then dramatically raising the gun to her right temple, pulled the trigger and as horrified women looked on, slipped to the sidewalk dead.

SEVERAL FIRES STARTED IN BELFAST

Flames Rage in Different Parts of City; 3 Hurt When Bomb Is Thrown Belfast, Ire., March 28 (By Associated Press).—Several fires broke out in different parts of the city today.

A bomb was thrown into a crowd watching the burning of a jam factory in Unity street, and three persons were wounded.

Firemen from all the fire stations in Belfast were busy throughout the night. Among the buildings burned were a store in Ann street, a flour mill in York street and a shop in Kent street all of which were in the central area.

The Jam factory was situated in Unity street. Each faction accused the other of starting the fire.

London, March 28.—The peace parley to end warfare between Sinn Feiners and Orangemen in Ulster was initiated today with the arrival of Arthur Griffith and E. J. Duggan. Griffith is president of the Dail Eireann and Duggan is a member of the Irish Cabinet.

Although the British government is prepared if necessary to place Belfast under martial law, it can only do so with the consent of the Ulster cabinet tomorrow. The proposition of establishing cordons of guards for the frontier will also be discussed, according to Churchill, these are only discussed as palliatives.

"We must have a friendly working agreement between the governments of the North and South," said Churchill. "The good offices of the government are available but we do not desire to intrude. If the governments of the North and South wish to discuss matters between themselves we will not stand on any ceremony but will withdraw without the slightest hesitation. The government will do its best to bring about a better state of affairs."

Premier Craig of Ulster wired that he will attend the conference.

Orangemen Ordered to Quit Donegal Town.

Funerans, County Donegal, Ire., March 24.—Irish Provisional Government troops have taken over the police barracks here which were evacuated by the Royal Irish Constabulary. Notices have been posted ordering all Orangemen to leave by this evening—a measure of reprisal for the recent MacMahon murders in Belfast.

Craig Raps Collins in Parliament

Belfast, March 28.—(By the Associated Press.)—Sir James Craig, Premier of Ulster, speaking in the Northern Parliament today, in answer to the statement issued by Michael Collins, head of the provisional government, said:

"I would have made no statement at this stage but for the serious charge made by Mr. Collins which may convey the impression that I have not honestly kept my word. I will not deviate the inch from the policy I have pursued from the beginning.

"The whole aspect has changed since the revelation of predatory attacks being attempted upon the Ulster area. I cannot go on with the agreement when such an interpretation is placed upon it. Mr. Collins is not big enough to stick to his signature."

Reilly, retire from the case and that she be allowed new counsel.

CHARGED WITH SETTING FIRE TO BUILDING

Charged with setting fire to a building, John Benedah, of Leverett street, West End, in Municipal Court today, was held in $5,000 bail for hearing on April 4. Witnesses testified that he made threats against the Childs restaurant on Washington street where he had been employed. The man was arrested as he was leaving the building which the restaurant is situated. A lance was discovered in the restaurant.

conceit and a love of domination."

Mrs. White declared. She estimated his personal income at $30,000 yearly.

Court adjourned when Mrs. White completed her direct testimony. Defence Attorney Badger will cross-examine her tomorrow.

Among her complaints are the following charges:

That White, who is forty-nine years old refuses to give her any money, has closed his Summer estate in Pepperell to her, and is at present living in the Island of Jamaica with another woman.

That she is reduced to circumstances which do not at all accord with the life of luxury she is accustomed to, so that she is at present able only to maintain a four-room suite at the Hotel Abbotsford, on Commonwealth avenue, where she has no maid.

That whereas she was formerly used to having both a Summer and Winter home, she now has neither.

That White was "insanely jealous" of her family and would never allow their three children to see any of them.

MARRIED IN 1892.

Mrs. White said she was married in 1892. At that time White was a clerk in the Lee, Higginson & Co. banking concern, she said, although he was left a legacy of $50,000 and some property. Eventually he became a partner in the firm, she added. He retired in 1907 to enter the brokerage business for himself.

The White children are Mrs. Louise White of Rye, N. Y.; Henry K. White, Harry K. White, graduated '19, and Harriett White, aged fourteen years.

Mrs. White complained that she could not give Harriett the education she should have, inasmuch as she was unable to send her to the more expensive finishing schools.

During her residence at the 123 acre estate in Pepperell, Mrs. White said, her husband told her he was to consider herself a "guest" in his home, and that she would have no control over the servants or the conduct of the household.

That the suit will be bitterly contested was indicated during the opening argument of her attorney, Robert G. Dodge. Judge White had asked Dodge whether the question of living apart for cause would enter into the case as an issue. Attorney Walter I. Badger, for the defence, announced emphatically that it would.

ACCUSES WHITE.

Dodge in his opening statement asserted that White had been guilty of "conduct so extraordinary that it can be explained only on the ground that his mind is not right."

White, according to his wife, is a member of the Tennis and Racquets Club, the Brookline Country Club, the Puritan Club, the Exchange Club and the Eastern Yacht Club.

Mrs. White said that after her husband left her, in 1920, he made some slight contributions to her support until June, 1921, when these contributions stopped. During the remainder of that year, she said, her expenditures had totalled $8,617, while in January and February of this year she has spent $2,500.

Seven witnesses were sworn in to testify for the wife.

By Associated Press.

Tarrytown, N. Y., March 28.—Clad in knickerbockers and a sport coat, Miss Virginia G. Bell, appeared before Mayor Foley and indignantly declared that she would go to jail before she would pay the $15 fine he had assessed her for speeding her automobile through the village last Saturday.

"Very well," replied the judge, "it is then fifteen days in jail."

A policeman was instructed to "see that this young woman does not leave your custody until she reaches the jail at White Plains."

Flushing with anger, but refusing to recede from her position, Miss Bell was taken to White Plains and locked up. Five hours later some of her friends arrived at the jail with a receipt for the fine and obtained her release.

NAWN, BUILDER OF SUBWAYS, IS DEAD who planned and executed the job.

One of the toughest contracts, as Mr. Nawn afterward said himself, was building the Washington street tunnel. He had to change every building from Franklin to Essex street. But the underpinning was so skillfully and stoutly put in that not a single building fell down or even listed. He built sections one and four of that subway.

A bigger contract, but one which Mr. Nawn did not consider so hard as the Washington street subway, was the construction of the Cambridge subway. The speed with which he rushed the work fairly startled the city officials of Cambridge and Boston and the Boston Transit Commission.

BUILT CAMBRIDGE TUNNEL.

Given three years in which to get the tunnel open, Mr. Nawn finished his work in eighteen months. In July, 1910, Mr. Nawn told W. A. Bancroft, then president of the elevated, he would be ready to take an inspection party through the entire tunnel in an automobile by Feb. 1, 1911. President Bancroft wagered a silk hat that it could not be done. President Bancroft lost the bet to the contractor.

His share in constructing the new Boylston street tubs made the first subway contract.

The way to find Harry P. Nawn in working hours was to go to the place where work was rushing hardest on his biggest contract and there he would be—a small, snappy man with grayish hair and soft-spoken, but masterful, voice, directing operations, talking with foremen and engineers and seeing about five times as much at a glance as the average man. He had a wonderful head for details, as well as a broad enough view to take in big contracts.

MASTER OF DETAIL.

"Details," he once said, "are my business. I'm the man who is interested. For the rest of it, I see things."

Mr. Nawn was keenly interested in politics. He was head of the Ward 21 Democratic organization and handled his ward in the decisive, masterly way he put through his engineering jobs.

He made and kept friends. He could get tremendous work out of his men.

SENATE DEBATE ON NAVY LIMIT TREATY

Washington, March 28.—With action on the Four-Power Pacific Treaty completed by ratification of the two supplemental agreements, the Senate began a debate today on the naval limitation treaty establishing a 5-5-3 capital ship ratio for the United States, Great Britain and Japan. This pact was called up after the Senate had finally untangled its difficulties over the Four-Power Treaty supplements. Administration managers expect to see it ratified by an almost unanimous vote by the end of the week.

The two supplementary agreements to the Four-Power pact were ratified by a unanimous vote after a parliamentary hitch had been overcome by joining the two. The supplement excluded purely domestic issues from those which may be brought before the Four-Power "conferences" was attached as a "reservation" to the other supplement, itself in the form of a treaty, defining the geographical scope of the Four-Power Pact so as not to include the Japanese homeland. Treaty opponents joined in giving approval to the supplements because they interpreted them as curtailing the operation of the treaty.

SOUTH BOSTON HIGH SCHOOL BOY MISSING

William Thomas, muster sergeant, C. A. C., at Fort Warren, has asked the Boston American to help find his fourteen-year-old son, George Thomas, missing since Sunday. He attended a dance at the Fort Warren post on Saturday evening, after which he slept on U-boat No. 52 with permission of the commanding officer. Sunday morning he could not be found. He attended the South Boston High School and is described as having dark hair and eyes, about five feet four inches tall and weight about 150 pounds. He wore a dark blue suit, red and blue knitted stocking cap and black lace shoes when last seen.

STRANGLED TO DEATH AT STATE HOSPITAL

Legislature Asked to Reimburse Parents of John M. Weeks of Cambridge

Charging that inhuman treatment resulted in the death by strangulation, of John M. Weeks of Cambridge at the Westboro State Hospital in March, 1920, Attorney Thomas Brennan today urged the House Ways and Means Committee to reimburse the parents for the loss and suffering causer by the death of their son.

Brennan said that Weeks was given the "tub treatment" at the State Hospital, being kept in the bath for eight hours. He said a towel was twisted around the patient's neck forcefully times and the thrusting of a nozzle down his throat was also part of the treatment.

The medical examiner found that death resulted from strangulation, Brennan said, the neck was swollen, the lungs full of water and the breast, arms and legs badly bruised.

Brennan said the two orderlies responsible for the brutalities were convicted of manslaughter. He said the aged parents relied greatly upon the son for support and they had received every assurance that he had an even chance of recovering from his mental illness.

FOUR YOUNG MEN HELD FOR BROOKLINE BREAK

Four young men were arrested today by the Brookline police in connection with a break in the cellar of the home of Patrick McLaughlin, at No. 55 Walter avenue, Brookline. Arraigned in the Brookline Court they pleaded not guilty to charges of breaking and entering, and were held until tomorrow in bail of $200 each. They gave the names of Thomas B. Tiernan, Thomas J. Cronie, Henry W. McKenney and William L. Maxwell. Cronie, with William Quinlan, is also held on an additional count of larceny of a barrel from the cellar.

$300,000 IN LIQUOR SEIZED ON YACHT

Bayville, N. Y., March 28.—The steam yacht Edith said to be owned by Anjonie Chasee, tobacco importer, was raided off the coast here and liquor valued at $300,000 seized. She had been to the Bahamas. Thirty-two men, including Chasee, the captain, crew and motor truck drivers were arrested.

EVIDENCE IN RICKARD CASE COMPLETED

Boxing Promoter Offers Alibi of Attendance at Football Game

By Associated Press.

New York, March 28.—Evidence in the Rickard trial was all in at noon. Supreme Court Justice Wasservogel told the jury he hoped to give them the case late today, after both sides had summed up.

The defence indicated it was through when cross-examination of Richard Ender, The State then called its first witness in rebuttal.

The first touch of levity that has marked the trial came while the defendant was being cross-examined regarding his alibi that he was at the Dartmouth-Pennsylvania football game at the Polo Grounds on November 13, at the time when he was supposde to have met Sarah Schoenfeld.

"Did you see any kick-offs?" asked Assistant District Attorney Pecora.

"What kind of a kick-off?"

He admitted he did not know the number of players on a team.

Rickard admitted that he had promoted a number of oil and mining companies that never had paid any dividends.

The State, in its efforts to prove that Rickard had assaulted fifteen-year-old Sarah Schoenfeld, called only one witness in rebuttal—Detective McGann, who arrested the sport promoter last January. The defence took several exceptions.

VOCATIONAL TRAINING IN U. S. ARMY CAMP

Washington, March 28 (By International News Service).—President Harding approves the plan of Attorney General Daugherty to establish a "vocational reformatory" at Camp Grant, Illinois, for young first termers now serving sentences in Federal prisons, it was stated officially at the White House this afternoon. Legislation granting the use of land and buildings at Camp Grant to the Department of Justice is now being framed and will be sent to Congress with the backing of the administration.

LEGAL BATTLE OVER ESTATE OF PAULINE CLARK, POISON VICTIM

CREDITORS PRESENT CLAIMS

M. J. Sughrue Asks Court to Appoint Him Administrator of Beauty's Effects

A legal battle over the estate of beautiful Pauline Virginia Clark, who died from the effects of poison in her handsomely furnished apartment in The Back Bay, opened today in the Suffolk County Probate Court when Michael J. Sughrue filed a petition to be appointed administrator of the property left by the girl.

The petition is returnable April 6. As yet Mrs. Sarah Herrick, mother of the dead girl, has not asked to be named administratrix.

The property left by Miss Clarke is reported to have been exceedingly valuable, and includes Parisian rugs, one of which is valued at $5,000, and a diamond ring, said to be valued at $1,800.

The girl is reported to have had many creditors, some of whom are represented by the law firm of White & Hartness, at No. 35 Devonshire street.

Attorney George D. Baker, of the firm, and the man who asked for the appointment of Sughrue as administrator, said today that the claims of the creditors represented by his firm amounted to approximately $1,500, most of which are for clothing purchased by the young woman, whose beautiful gowns and footwear were famous in the circles in which she moved.

SUED LAST MONTH.

Baker said that last month he was retained to sue the woman for a number of bills, but that he was unable to find her for some time. He finally located her in the Newbury street apartment where she died, and filed suit early this month.

This suit was returnable March 6. Miss Clark was represented by Attorney Joseph J. Donohue, who is now attorney for Mrs. Herrick.

No action was taken on the suit at the time it came up. The matter was in that status when the story of her sudden death and the disappearance of Otto H. Larsen, student at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and one of the girl's many sweethearts, was printed in the papers.

"I immediately went to Medical Examiner Magrath to see what estate she had left. As a consequence today I filed a petition for the appointment of Sughrue as administrator. I have also filed suits to protect my clients."

Baker said that while he has not been inside the woman's apartment he is satisfied from what he has learned regarding her affairs, that the valuables referred to in the furnishings "is greatly overestimated."

"LOANED" TO HER.

He also said that there is every chance that some of some people who will claim that many of the articles of value in the apartment were merely "loaned" to Miss Clark.

It is understood that there were a number of suits pending against Miss Clark at the time of her death, most of them on account of bills which the plaintiffs claimed had not been paid.

Medical Examiner Magrath's failure to make his formal report has delayed the solution of the mystery shrouding the death of the girl, it was stated today.

Chief Justice Wilfred Bolster announced that the inquest ordered by District Attorney Thomas C. O'Brien into the deaths of the girl and Larsen will not take place probably for two weeks. It is understood that this inquest will not be open to the public.

As a result of the delay on the part of the medical examiner, the investigation being conducted by Inspector James A. Dennessy, homicide expert of the Bureau of Criminal Investigation, is practically at a standstill.

The medical examiner could not be located, and inquiry at his office as to when the report would be made, elicited the response: "We have no information."

Pelletier's Secretary Who Resigned at O'Brien's Request

TYPIST HOLDS NO ANIMUS FOR O'BRIEN

Pelletier's Secretary, Discharged by District Attorney, Loyal to Former Chief

"I am and always have been 100 per cent. loyal to Mr. Pelletier," declared Miss Alice G. Kirby of No. 827 Broadway, South Boston, the former private secretary, whose resignation was requested by District Attorney Thomas C. O'Brien.

According to Miss Kirby, when District Attorney O'Brien gave her no explanation of his action in calling for her resignation other than to state he desired to have his own private secretary and that eventually he would have his own clerical force.

"I don't entertain any hostile sentiments towards Mr. O'Brien for his action," declared Miss Kirby, who has been in the district attorney's office four years, but the host of acquaintances she made in the course of her duties are considerably ruffled over her resignation.

Court officer, inspectors and police sergeants with whom Miss Kirby came in contact deeply regret her resignation, for they said she had endeared herself to all, and always was scrupulously attentive to business.

Miss Kirby also took an active part in the mayoralty campaign of Mr. Pelletier. She intends to follow the destinies of Mr. Pelletier.

"My efforts and influence will always be with Mr. Pelletier, and those of my friends," declared Miss Kirby.

EDITOR OF WILLIAMS MAGAZINE APOLOGIZES

Williamstown, March 28.—Harry E. Schauffler, of Kansas City, Mo., editor-in-chief, and Herbert M. Brune, Jr., of Baltimore, managing editor of the humorous editions of the Williams Record, the appearance of which last week was followed by the suspension from college of most of its staff of 30 students, today apologized for the inclusion of objectionable features in the issue. The apology, made through the columns of the regular edition of the Record, was addressed to all students, alumni and friends of Williams College, and said the student officials regretted deeply that the reputation and glory of Williams should be dimmed, directly or indirectly, in any degree by the humorous issue.

STATE BOARD IN LAWRENCE PEACE MOVE

Textile Inquiry Asked by Mill City Mayor; 2,500 Join Strikers' Ranks

Tentative steps to bring to an end the textile strike which has already called 15,000 Lawrence mill operatives, driven 20,000 out of work and bids fair, unless checked, to tie up every mill in Lawrence, were taken this afternoon by the State Division of Conciliation and Arbitration.

The State officials began to move at the request of Mayor Daniel W. Mahoney of Lawrence and Commissioner of Public Safety Peter Carr of that city, who came to Boston from Lawrence today.

The Board announced today that it has been making inquiry into the strike and has collected many facts. No announcement will be made as to the course of action to be taken until further information is obtained.

2,500 Join Ranks of Lawrence Strikers

Lawrence, March 28.—Twenty-five hundred mill workers joined the ranks of the strikers today, bringing the total number on strike on this, the second day of the big industrial conflict, up to 15,000.

More than 20,000 mill hands are now out of work and the number bids fair to be increased considerably in the next few hours.

The Pacific Mills, which, according to the management, yesterday ran on a 50 per cent quota, today admitted a much diminished force on hand.

At the upper mill, where normally 4,500 hands are employed, 141 reported for duty when the gates opened today.

The lower mill was in a similar situation, while the printing plant, where the printers have accepted a 10 per cent cut in wages, was running as usual.

Hundreds of workers gathered on Lawrence Common, where they were addressed by a number of the leaders, including Salvatore Legreni, general organizer of the "One Big Union"; Hugh Glover of Fall River, organizer for the United Hatters of America and special organizer for the United Textile Workers of America, and Francis Gorman, who is in charge of the strike here.

Pawtucket Plant Shut by Strike Is Reopened

Pawtucket, R. I., March 28.—A few operatives reported for work today at the plant of the Dexter Yarn Company, which has been closed for several weeks by the textile strike. The company had announced its intention to reopen and asked striking employes to report for work this forenoon.

They were to work on a 54-hour working schedule and a 20 per cent. wage reduction. It is understanding that after settlement of the strike, they would be paid at the rate agreed upon, strike leaders said. Company officials were mum.

Chief of Police Jason of Lonsdale with several special officers and a dozen sheriff intervened today to prevent intimidation of two employes of the Lonsdale bleachery by a crowd of 200 pickets. The officers escorted the men to the plant

Pawtucket Weave Shop Is Shut Down.

Providence, March 28.—The 200 employes in the weave shop of the Solway Dyeing & Textile Company, Pawtucket, were out this noon and the weave shop was closed. The men claimed some of them had struck and the rest had been locked out. The management said that the shop had been closed until Monday.

According to the men, recent changes in the working system in the weave shop have forced them to work harder for less pay than before.

McMahon Will Go to Lawrence Thursday.

Manchester, N. H., March 28.—President Thomas McMahon of the United Textile Workers will remain in New Hampshire until Thursday evening, union officials here announced today. He spoke at Dover this morning and will address meetings at Somersworth and Newmarket this afternoon and evening.

He is scheduled to speak at Exeter tomorrow evening, before returning to Manchester for a conference.

Thursday morning McMahon speaks at Suncook, after which, officials here say, he will go to Lawrence, Mass., to take up active direction of the strike there.

DEPORTATION ORDER FOR PROBST IS HELD ILLEGAL

New York, March 28.—August Probst, former waiter at the Rolling Rock Club, near Pittsburgh, who claimed he was being "railroaded" out of the country because of a love affair with Miss Virginia Craigie McKay of Pittsburgh, was illegally ordered deported, Federal Judge Knox ruled today, in a decision on Probst's habeas corpus proceedings. He was held, however, for further deportation proceedings.

CHELSEA MEN HELD ON FORGERY CHARGE

Charged with having forged a number of checks with the name of his father, Lewis, Moses Perlmuter of Chelsea street, East Boston, in Municipal Court today was held in $1,000 bail for hearing April 4. He is alleged to have forged checks for $4,000, $27 and $26 on the United States Trust Company; $800 and $150 on the Columbia Trust Company and $800 on the Back Bay National Bank.

STUBBORN GIRL FOUND, POSING AS WIFE

Brighton Young Man Took Her to His Parents' Home, Says Child

Seventeen-year-old Angelina Perry, arraigned in the East Boston court today as a stubborn child, gave court officials a surprise when she declared that during her two weeks' absence from her home she had posed as the wife of a young man at his parents' home in Buckminster street, Brighton.

She was given money and clothes by the young man and daily came in contact with his people, who supposed her to be his legal bride, the girl said.

As a result of her story the Brighton police said they would seek a warrant for the young man's arrest on a serious charge.

Miss Perry's home is on Maverick street, East Boston, with her father, Joseph, and her stepmother. She said she had left home because of inability to get along with the stepmother, and because of that would not go back. The girl was sentenced to the Sherborn Reformatory for Women.

Miss Perry's arrest was due to a singular coincidence. A warrant, sworn out by her father, had been in the hands of the police for two weeks, but they had been unable to find her. Yesterday she was standing on a street corner in the South End, talking with a young man. She remarked: "I suppose the police are looking for me," and a plain clothes officer overheard her.

He arrested her and took her to the East Dedham street station, where she was turned over to the East Boston authorities.

MILLIONAIRE TO BE SUED BY GIRL WIFE

in this quaint old town and announced she will sue for divorce.

In the beautifully furnished home of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Mills in the exclusive Poquasquash section of Beloit, Mrs. Godfrey received a Boston American reporter and explained that she was divorcing Mr. Godfrey and the December and May romance that three years ago stirred this section of Beloit when it leaked out has been stirred in years.

"There was nothing sensational in my leaving my husband," declared Mrs. Godfrey. "It was a perfectly quiet and simple process. I thought the matter out, decided I would not be happy with my husband and left him. That is really all there is to it.

"There was no reason other than my desire for happiness. I felt that I could not be happy there. I left. I am happy. I know that I shall find the happiness I want."

"Was it a case of becoming tired of being an old man's darling?" the young wife was asked.

"I do not think that it would take a great stretch of imagination to figure out that a young woman cannot be as happy as she wishes with a man so much older than herself," was her reply.

"Just let me publish this one thing though," added Mrs. Godfrey, "There is nothing to some of the rumors that have gone about explaining my leaving. There is no one else in the case. I did not leave for anything but my happiness."

Asked if she had heard of the sorrow that her departure had brought to her aged husband Mrs. Godfrey replied:

"I have been told considerable in the past few days. I am sorry that I have been hurt so much. But in spite of it all I have left and I shall never go back, I must have happiness."

"Is it true that you are suing for a divorce soon," said Mrs. Godfrey, on grounds of incompatibility."

"Isn't there any other reason, aside from a wish to secure happiness?" she was asked. "Some reason you do not wish to disclose?"

"There is no other. Just say I left for my happiness."

The young wife said she had no plans for the future.

"I have no plans at present," she said. "I have no idea at present as to what I shall do. I am here just now. As for the future—I have nothing to say."

Mrs. Henry H. Mudge, mother of Mrs. Godfrey, is broken-hearted over her daughter's marital tangle. At her home, also in the Popasquash district, and not more than 300 yards from the home where her daughter is stopping, she lay in her sick bed and sobbed out her ideas on the subject.

"I never approved of my daughter marrying Mr. Godfrey," she said. "I fought against it before the marriage three years ago. I did not think it would turn out happily because of the great difference in their ages. I pleaded with Estelle not to do it, but she went ahead on her own account and married him.

"Now she has left him on her own account and without consulting me. She will have to work out her own problem. She is welcome to come and live with me, or she can go where she wills.

"I do not approve of her action. As long as she married him I think she should have stood by him, but what she has done she has done of her own accord. I am sorry that she has made him sad."

Mrs. Godfrey, who as Estelle Mudge, was one of Dr. James De-Wolfe Perry, bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Rhode Island, was widely known in Rhode Island society circles some few years ago as an expert horsewoman and lover of sport, shows no traces of care or grief at the separation that has so stirred Bridgeport and Rhode Island social circles.

Godfrey Admits Wife Also His Ward,

Bridgeport, Ct., March 28.—That his twenty-year-old wife, Estelle Mudge Godfrey, who has deserted him and announced her intention of seeking a divorce, is also his ward was admitted by Jonathan Godfrey, seventy-six-year-old millionaire manufacturer.

Godfrey declared that his wife, who was only seventeen years old at the time of their marriage three years ago, became his ward under a pre-nuptial agreement. He would not disclose the nature of the agreement.

It was reported that the arrangement by which Godfrey became the guardian as well as husband of Estelle Mudge will enter into the proposed d'vorce proceedings of the millionaire.

Mrs. Godfrey has declared that she will base her suit on grounds of incompatibility. This, however, is not sufficient grounds under the laws of Connecticut, the State which is the legal residence of both.

Godfrey would not discuss the question of his young wife seeking a divorce, further than to vigorously deny that there was another man in the case.

Mrs. Godfrey's action has created a sensation in social circles here. Despite the difference in ages the marriage was considered a love match. Mrs. Godfrey, it is said, is wealthy in her own right.

ADMITS WOMAN SWALLOWED POISON

Dr. F. C. Noble, head of the Boston State Hospital, today admitted that Mrs. Addie M. Rideout, an instructor in occupational therapy at that institution, swallowed a quantity of poison at the hospital a week ago today.

The physician refused to enlarge on the bare admission that the woman, whose husband is an attendant at the hospital, had swallowed the poison. She was not made seriously ill, he said. He said he did not believe she had tried to kill herself.

Dr. Noble admitted, however, that she had taken the poison "rather deliberately."

"I believe she did it to throw a scare into somebody," he said.

Further than that the physician would not go in his comments. He said that the police had not been notified because the woman was not made seriously ill.

Rumors about the hospital were to the effect that Mrs. Rideout made a deliberate attempt to end her life, leaving a note to her husband in which she is alleged to have said she had been made despondent by a quarrel with another attendant.

Mrs. Rideout came to the hospital from Mississippi about six weeks ago. She is said to have suffered a nervous breakdown recently.

SICK ANIMALS CURED BY CORRESPONDENCE

Sick animals and birds cured by correspondence! This is the latest project undertaken by the Angell Memorial Animal Hospital. Over one hundred such cases were treated last year. According to the annual report of President Francis H. Rowley of the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, the hospital treated 5,034 cases and the free dispensary administered to 11,061 cases of small and large animals. The society reports 223 prosecutions and 218 convictions for the past year.

BRITISH TO LEGITIMIZE CHILDREN OF UNWED

London, March 28.—A bill to establish the legitimacy of children of unmarried parents is to be introduced in the House of Commons as a government measure, according to Captain George E. Bowyer, member of Parliament for Buckingham. He made the announcement at a meeting of the National League for health, maternity and child welfare.

N.Y. WOMEN CAN SMOKE; BAN IS LIFTED

Police Head Discovers "Anti" Ordinance Has Not Had Aldermanic O. K.

New York, March 28.—Police Commissioner Enright today lifted the ban on smoking by women in public as suddenly as he clamped it down last night, when he learned Alderman McGuinness' anti-smoking ordinance had never been passed by the Board of Aldermen or signed by Mayor Hylan.

Daniel W. F. McCoy, an employe in the city clerk's office, was led forth, caparisoned in sackcloth and ashes, as official "goat" for an error that had set pro- and even anti-smoking women on the warpath from the Battery to the far reaches of Harlem.

McCoy, it was explained, was charged with clipping the official city record for resolutions and ordinances that have been adopted and approved by the Mayor, and sending them along to proper officials for enforcement.

McCoy said was too much overcome by the wrath that has descended upon his head to explain just how it happened to include the anti-smoking bill in his list of ordinances adopted and approved.

City Clerk Quinn called in Mr. McCoy's defence, however, and intimated that the clerk's office was by no means had a corner on "ivory."

Had Police Commissioner Enright, or his aides, read the purported ordinance when it was declared, they would have discovered it was not a proper document, as it did not bear the stamp of the clerk's office certifying that it had been approved by the Mayor.

Now that it was all a mistake came like a reprieve from the gallows to proprietors of scores of chic places where gratification of milady's passion for the soothing weed was the chief source of trend and butter revenues. Fashionable smoke shops for women had sprung up in Fifth avenue, Broadway and other advanced centres, while Greenwich Village had come to depend almost exclusively on smoke rings to produce an atmosphere of Bohemianism—since the passing of the "cup that cheers."

AGENT HELD IN THEFT OF WOOL FROM MILL

Clinton, March 28.—James Hall, agent of the New England Woolen Mill, was arraigned here today and pleaded not guilty to a charge of larceny of $100 worth of wool and wool waste. Hall was held in $400 bail for the grand jury. Judge Jonathan Smith ordered that David F. Carruth, representing the wool company, and on whose complaint Hall was arrested, be a bondsman. State police officers investigated a story that 70,000 pounds of wool and wool waste had been stolen from the company and sold to a Worcester dealer.

BELGIAN RULERS VISIT QUIRINAL FIRST IN ROME

Rome, March 28 (By the Associated Press).— The King and Queen of the Belgians, with Crown Prince Leopold, arrived this afternoon on a special train to find Rome gaily bedecked and wearing an appearance of greatest animation in their honor.

The King, Queen and Crown Prince of Italy met them at the station, and Premier Facta and many other government officials also were present. After going to the Quirinal the Belgian royalists paid an official visit to Pope Pius.

EX-ARCHDUKE LEOPOLD ASKS AID AS PAUPER

Basel, Switzerland, March 28. — The former Austrian Archduke Leopold, who broke with the House of Hapsburg ten years ago as a result of his marriage to a Viennese actress, has applied to the town of Regensberg for aid from the city paupers' fund. His wife, whom he divorced, has also asked for aid. The Archduke was the nephew of Leopold Wolfing at the time of his break with his royal relatives. He is living in Vienna and his former wife is in Berlin.

AMUNDSEN WILL USE RADIO DURING DASH

New York, March 28.—The American Arctic expedition, which will leave Seattle, Wash., June 1 to drift through the seas past the North Pole, will be the first dash of its kind in history kept constantly in touch with the outside world through wireless, telegraph and telephone. This announcement was made by the leader of the expedition, Raold Amundsen, intrepid Norwegian explorer, who arrived here today from Christiania on the Norwegian-American liner Stavangerf Jord.

"BLUEBEARD" LANDRU LOST NAME WITH HEAD

Paris, March 28.—Henri Desire Landru, guillotined Febuary 25 for the murder of ten women and a boy, lost his name when he lost his head. The man who astounded those who watched his trial by his remarkable desire for publicity was buried in an unmarked grave, where his daughter and two sons have been authorized, at their request, to place a small cross marked only "Henri-Desire." The children have asked authority to change their names to Remy.

E. P. MURPHY TO RUN FOR REGISTRAR OF RTH

Former Election Commissioner Edward P. Murphy of Charlestown will be a candidate for the office of Registrar of Deeds of Suffolk County, he announced today. William T. A. Fitzgerald, the present registrar, will probably seek re-election. Murphy says his slogan will be: "Widows, watch your deeds."

JUDGE PIERCE WILL GO ON THE STAND

Intends to Defend Charges Against Him When Trial Opens April 10

Justice Edward P. Pierce of the Supreme Judicial Court will appear in person, take the witness stand and defend himself of the grave charges of misconduct in office which have been made to the Legislature in the petition demanding his removal.

The probe committee of the Legislature appointed to hear the charges against Justice Pierce decided at a preliminary meeting today that the public trial would begin at a public hearing at the State House on April 10.

Attorney George M. Poland and his law associate, Representative Loring P. Jordan of Wakefield, who filed the removal charges against Justice Pierce today agreed to submit the specifications detailing the charges not later than Friday.

Attorney Sherman L. Mayberry, counsel for Justice Pierce, will file the judge's answer with the committee on or before April 5, and the first witnesses will be summonsed for the hearing on April 10.

Attorney Mayberry said today that Justice Pierce had recovered from his recent operation and subsequent illness and will be ready to appear when the actual taking of evidence is begun.

At the preliminary hearings today Attorney Poland said the complainants against Justice Pierce are ready to go to trial "instantly." Mayberry said Justice Pierce would offer no objection to an immediate and speedy trial.

Among the interested persons in attendance today were Mary G. Hand and Henry Wood, who claim that Justice Pierce acted improperly in the negotiations centring about the estate of the Henry Wood Sons Company and the Waban Rose Conservatories.

Another sister, Blanche A. Legro of Washington, is expected to be present at the trial. Attorney Walter Edwin Ulmer, who was counsel for the estate, was also present today.

Justice Pierce is charged with acquiring gratuities, including coal and flowers sent to him from the conservatory by Ulmer while the estate was in litigation.

That he interested himself improperly in the cases and conspired to prevent justice in the administration of the estate are among the other charges against him. The stock value of the two companies was said to be about $800,000.

MARINE TRIES TO KILL SELF AT CAMBRIDGE JAIL

Richard Wisenfeld, 20 years old, a private in the U. S. Marine Corps, has been transferred from the East Cambridge jail to the State Hospital at Bridgewater, after attempting following an attempt to commit suicide by slashing both wrists with a safety razor blade. Wisenfeld was awaiting trial for the murder of Quincy Bodden, a comrade in the marines. He was arraigned in the police court in the East Cambridge jail, bleeding profusely from the self-inflicted wounds. He was rushed to the hospital at the jail. The physician said his condition was not serious.

CONNECTICUT RIVER AT HIGH FOR SEASON

Springfield, March 28.—The Connecticut river today rose to the highest point this season, reaching eleven feet above mean low water at this city with a rise of a foot over night at points between Bellows Falls, Vt., and Old Saybrook. Reports from Vermont are that nearly all the ice has gone out. This factor will be relied upon to prevent any of property damage in case of a continued rise.

FRESHMAN-SOPHOMORE CLASH AT DARTMOUTH

Hanover, N. H., March 28.—A Dartmouth College class rushing tiered ominously today when the freshman class appeared at chapel without caps, the forfeiture of which, the damage to precedent was fully regarded, however, by the sophomores, who, in the course of a half-hour combat, proved to the freshman that it was wiser to obey a rule than to break it.

PUNCH BOARD MAN CHARGED WITH LOTTERY

Antonio Rossa of Chelsea street, East Boston, was in court today charged with promoting a lottery. Thomas Fahey and William Thomas said they punched a "board" and each refused to pay the seventy-three cents due. Rossa would not let them leave until they paid. Three cents attracted Patrolman McKee. Rossa's case was continued.

FINDS SOUTH END MAN UNCONSCIOUS FROM GAS

John S. Chapman, seventy-six years old, was found unconscious from the fumes of a leaking gas jet today by his daughter, Mrs. Salina McKeena, at his home, No. 320 Shawmut avenue. He was taken to the City Hospital, where his name was placed on the danger list.

BABY DAUGHTER WINS $100,000 GEMS FOR DAD

Oakland, Cal., March 28.—James C. Blum, Jr., by becoming the father of a girl, has won the right to inherit two necklaces, one of diamonds and the other of pearls, valued together at $100,000. His mother, Mrs Tessa Blum, bequeathed them to [illegible] his when his wife gave birth to [illegible] daughter. Blum, already in possession of the rest of his mother's $350,000 estate, brought suit just year to get the necklaces because his wife had borne a son. He contended the that was sufficient grace to fulfilling the terms of the will, but the court thought otherwise and dismissed the case.

SMUT-RESISTING WHEAT DEVELOPED IN OREGON

The Dalles, Ore., March 28.—Wheat totally resistant to smut or bunt, something heretofore unknown to plant pathologists, has been evolved as a result of experiments conducted at the government experiment station at Moro, D. E. Stephens, superintendent, announced today. Superintendent Stephens has produced four distinct varieties of wheat that are immune from smut, he said.

FLETCHER CALLS ON HARDING FOR FAREWELL

Washington, March 28.—Henry P. Fletcher, who will sail from New York Saturday to assume his post as Ambassador to Belgium, called at the White House today to bid farewell to President Harding.

8 Die in Wreck

San Salvador, Republic of Salvador, March 28.—Eight passengers were drowned, among them two children and a newly married couple, when the steamboat Rienita was wrecked on a bar in the Colorado river, Northeastern Costa Rica.

NAVY CUT BILL TO GO THROUGH, SAYS KELLY

Washington, March 28.—Threats by the Navy Department to strip the Atlantic seaboard of ships and stations and concentrate them on the Pacific Coast, if Congress goes ahead with its plans to cut the navy personnel to 65,000, failed to jar the determination of House leaders today that the navy must come down. The navy bill is going through as planned, asserted Representative Pat Kelly, chairman of the appropriations sub-committee, and it will leave Secretary Denby free to place the navy wherever he wants it.

NEW PLAN WILL AID POSTOFFICE SPEED

Washington, March 28.—The Postoffice Department is rapidly completing plans for a decentralization of much of the routine work of the department under a system of State central offices which officials believe will greatly increase the efficiency of the service and at the same time effect saving in its cost. Postmaster-General Work said he believed the plan would mark "One of the most important reforms in the service in several generations."

FINGER-PRINT EXPERT AT ARBUCKLE TRIAL

San Francisco, March 28.—Completion of the finger print testimony of E. O. Heinrich, consulting criminologist of Berkeley, was the first thing before the court today for the resumption of the manslaughter trial of Roscoe C. Arbuckle for the death of Miss Virginia Rappe. The jury inspected the hotel rooms where Arbuckle was host to a party at which Miss Rappe became fatally ill.

'SIAMESE TWIN' SISTERS ARE NEAR DEATH

Both Will Lose Lives If One Dies Is Verdict of Attending Doctors

Chicago, March 28.—Josefa and Rosa Blazek, the "Siamese twins" of Czecho-Slovakia, were in a critical condition at a hospital here today.

Both lay unconscious and attending physicians feared they would not live through the day.

The twins were taken with jaundice. Rosa at first had a mild attack and was recovering, when Josefa developed a severe case of the disease.

The case is one of the strangest in the history of the medical science in Chicago, and perhaps the world. To save the lives of the twins it may be necessary to separate them by a unique operation, as one of them, Rosa, is said to be in better condition to ward off death than her sister.

The operation has been ecIared impossible by several physicians because of the vital manner in which the twins are united.

Dr. Benjamin H. Breakstone, president of the Hospital Association, was called in to operate on Josefa when it was learned that she also had appendicitis.

Dr. Breakstone refused to operate because Josefa was in a precarious condition. Josefa became worse yesterday. Last night her illness had its effect on Rosa, who suffered a relapse. She became unconscious at the same time Josefa did.

Rosa regained consciousness at one time today. The doctor expressed great fear for her life as her sister apparently was sinking.

"Starving" on $250 a Month, Wails Beauty; 'Starve,' Says Judge

Los Angeles, March 28.—She said she was "starving to death" on $250 a month alimony.

"Keep on starving," said Judge Summerfield to Josephine Bank, former movie "Bathing Beauty."

"Two hundred and fifty dollars a month is enough for any woman without children to live on."

The film beauty had cited her husband, Richard Jones, Mabel Normand's motion picture director, on a contempt charge, claiming he had failed to pay the alimony ordered some time ago.

LENINE SPEAKS TWO HOURS IN KREMLIN

Discounts Reports of Illness and Urges Communists to Get to Work

Moscow, March 28. (By The Associated Press.)—Premier Lenine, discounting recent reports of his illness, appeared yesterday before a secret meeting of the all Russia communist congress and spoke two hours, according to today's account of the meeting which was held in the Kremlin palace.

The Soviet premier made many sarcastic and witty remarks while appealing to the communists to cease dreaming and teorizing and get to work. Otherwise, he declared the communists could not hold their own in the impending struggle with the capitalistic for control of Russia.

"You must be paragons of industry," he declared.

WIFE'S LAWYER DECRIES HOLLIS DIVORCE

New Hampshire Decree Still in Force and Binds Him, He Says

Concord, N. H., March 28. — Edward K. Woodworth, of counsel for Mrs. Grace Fisher Hollis, laid stress on two important points in a statement relative to the divorce at Sofia, Bulgaria, of ex-United States Senator Henry F. Hollis and his marriage to Miss Anne White Hobbs of Concord at Rome.

The points are:

1. The fact that a court in Bulgaria has granted a divorce to Mr. Hollis does not affect the status of Mrs. Grace F. Hollis as his wife, unless he had a bona fide domicile in Bulgaria at the time the divorce was granted. Domicile implies not only the fact of actual residence, but also the intention to make the place his home.

2. The decree of separation granted to Mrs. Hollis by the New Hampshire Superior Court, determining that Mrs. Hollis had been wrongfully abandoned by her husband, is not superseded by the Bulgarian divorce, relieving the husband from obligation to support his wife.

Hollis Divorce Doubted by Bulgarian Embassy

Washington, March 28.—Members of the Bulgarian Legation here express grave doubts as to whether former Senator Henry F. Hollis of New Hampshire, under the laws of their country, could have secured an annulment of his marriage to Mrs. Grace L. Hollis, as reported.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON BOSTON SOCIETY

Thorndike-Warren Engagement Interests Smart Set

Random Notes of Society Folk in Town and Country

MR. AND MRS. JAMES HOWE PROCTOR of Commonwealth avenue, who are stopping for a while in New York entertained at dinner on Sunday at the St. Regis, where they are making their headquarters during the stay in the metropolis. Their dinner guests included Mr. and Mrs. Charles Riker and W. F. Ward.

Mrs. Charles F. Choate has as her house guest at her Palm Beach villa Mrs. George Peabody Gardner, also of Boston, who will stay with Mrs. Choate until the latter returns North early next month.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard W. Brown and Mr. and Mrs. John O'Day, all of Boston, have concluded their sojourn at Hot Springs, Va., and are on their way back to the Hub.

Mrs. Carl A. De Gersdorff opened her home in New York on East Sixty-fourth street on Monday morning for the annual meeting of the officers of the New York Exchange of Women's Work. Mrs. De Gersdorff's daughter married Frederick J. Bradlee, Jr., of Boston.

Mrs. Maude How Elliott has concluded her visit in Boston and has returned to her home, known as "Lilliput," in Newport.

The many Boston friends of Harold S. Vanderbilt, who occupies the Caswell place at Pride's Crossing during the Summer, will be interested to learn that Mr. Vanderbilt expects to remain at his Palm Beach villa, "El Salona" until about April 15, when he will return to New York. During his sojourn at Palm Beach the prominent New Yorker has entertained numerous Bostonians at "El Salona."

MISS DOROTHY THORNDIKE

By BETTY ALDEN

WE are convinced that it must be "open season" for a certain small rotund wielder of the bow and arrow, to judge by the succession of engagement announcements among the socially elect.

Friends of Miss Dorothy Thorndike and her fiance, Bentley Wirt Warren, Jr., are congratulating the young couple upon their recently announced betrothal. Miss Thorndike, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Thorndike, of No. 337 Beacon street and Nahant, ever since her debut three years ago, has been one of the most popular members of her set. Besides being treasurer of the 1919 Sewing Circle, she is one of the most active members of the Vincent Club.

Young Warren, son of the Bentley W. Warrens, of No. 185 Beacon street, received his sheepskin from Williams College last year, and is at present a student at the Harvard Law School. He is a member of the Alpha Delta Phi fraternity. His father, whose clubs include the Union and the Somerset, graduated from Williams College with the class of '85.

Apropos of Dorothy Thorndike's activities in the younger set—she was one of the leading spirits for the large benefit entertainment held recently in Jordan Hall in aid of the Winsor Nursery School. The affair, which attracted a notable society audience, was given by a group of Winsor graduates.

It has been particularly from the ranks of the 1919 Sewing Circle that bethothal and wedding announcements have been coming thick and fast during the past few weeks. Of the most recent of these is the news that Miss Elizabeth Bradlee of Brookline and Roger Adams Perry are engaged. Miss Bradlee, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry G. Bradlee, is now a junior at Vassar. Her fiance is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Arthur Perry of Jamaica Plain. He is a member of the Harvard 1920 class and belongs to the Institute, D. K. E., Harvard and D. U. clubs.

Among the girls of the 1919 coterie who have announced their wedding day are Eleanor Abbott, Romana Fiske, Lillian Aldrich, and Elizabeth Lyman, all of whom are to be married between now and the first of July. And needless to say, the marriage of each of these girls is calculated to draw the creme de la creme of the social world.

Those who spend a portion of the Summer months at Newport will be interested to learn that the present Hill Top Inn is to be enlarged to 100 rooms with baths, accommodating about 150 guests. A section of the building will be set aside as bachelor quarters.

Negotiations for the project are about to be consummated and the plans—being drawn by the firm of Messrs. Warren & Wetmore—will be submitted at a meeting in Newport next Friday, at which G. Louis Boissevain, president of the Hillard Hotel Company, and Walton H. Marshall, managing director, will be present.

It is proposed to tear down the main structure which now occupies the centre of the grounds, and the new building will be constructed on the outer portion of the estate, thereby allowing more space to outdoor diners on the spacious lawns. This site was formerly the home of the late Richard M. Hunt, noted architect, and after being transformed into a Summer hotel about eight years ago, it is now under the management of the Vanderbilt Hotel Company of New York.

The work of enlarging Hill Top will not begin until after the close of the coming season and will be completed for the Summer of 1923.

Mrs. Charles Cabot, Mrs. J. Malcolm Forbes, Mrs. Henry P. Kidder, Mrs. E. C. Moore and Mrs. Robert Gould Shaw are members of the advisory committee for New England's part in the Bryn Mawr experiment, under whose auspices a lecture will be given this afternoon by Albert Mansbridge. His topic is "Summer Schools for Women Workers in England."

Mrs. L. Carteret Fenno is opening her home at No. 238 Beacon street for the lecture, which is in the interest of the Summer school for women workers in industry at Bryn Mawr College.

Betty Alden

Society was interested to learn of the engagement of Miss Dorothy Thorndike and Bentley Wirt Warren, Jr., both of Beacon street. Miss Thorndike, who is treasurer of the 1919 Sewing Circle, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Thorndike, whose Summer estate is at Nahant.

WOMAN KILLED BY TRUCK IN BACK BAY

Mary DeGraw of Hotel Kenmore Struck While Crossing Commonwealth Ave.

Mary DeGraw, thirty-three years old, residing in the Hotel Kenmore, was killed by an automobile truck at Commonwealth and Massachusetts avenues today.

Details were being investigated in Municipal Court late today, upon application for a warrant for manslaughter for Michael Birmingham of No. 24 Hampden street, Roxbury, driver of the truck.

The truck was owned by the What-Cheer Chemical Company of Pawtucket, R. I.

Passersby who witnessed the accident and a traffic policeman summoned Dr. Ayre and detained the driver. The management of the hotel where the woman lived refused information concerning her residence there.

The body was taken to the Northern Mortuary.

LAST RITES HELD FOR MICHAEL W. QUINLAN

The funeral of Michael W. Quinlan, pioneer carriage builder of Brookline, was held today from the family residence at No. 52 High street. A solemn high mass of requiem was celebrated at St. Mary's of the Assumption Church. Interment was in Holyhood Cemetery. Celebrant of the mass was the Right Rev. Monsignour Michael T. McManus, assisted by Rev. Fr. Thomas Quinlan of South Natick, nephew of the deceased, as deacon; Rev. Fr. Bernard J. O'Kane, sub deacon and Rev. Fr. Aloysius Finn, master of ceremonies. Many persons of prominence were in attendance.

A beauty secret
3,000 years old

The use of palm and olive oils to keep the skin fresh and smooth is nothing new, but a secret known to pretty girls as far back as Cleopatra.

Her Palmolive came in skins and jars, and she had to do her own mixing. But the beautifying cleanser she achieved was the inspiration of the mild, soothing blend science produces today.

Take a lesson from Cleopatra, who kept her youthful beauty long after girlhood's days had passed. She used cosmetics to embellish and enhance her charm, just as women do today. But the foundation was a skin thoroughly and healthfully cleansed from all clogging and dangerous accumulations.

Soothes and beautifies

Palmolive is blended from the same palm and olive oils Cleopatra used—they are the mildest, most soothing ingredients science has been able to discover.

The scientific combination of these rare oils produces a smooth, creamy, lotion-like lather. Palmolive soothes and beautifies while it cleanses. It keeps the skin of the face and body beautifully soft and smooth.

The importance of thorough cleansing

It is absolutely essential to complexion beauty to wash your face thoroughly once a day. Palmolive makes this cleansing doubly beneficial by its mildness.

The profuse, creamy lather penetrates each tiny pore, removing the deposits of dirt, oil and perspiration which cause clogging and enlargement.

Such cleansing is the secret of fresh, smooth skins, as results prove. It stimulates circulation, keeps the texture fine, smooth and youthful.

The woman who fears that washing will age her skin has used the wrong soap. She will change her mind once she tries Palmolive.

Don't neglect the body

Care of the complexion only begins with the face. Your neck is just as noticeable for beauty or the lack of it, arms and shoulders should be kept white and smooth.

Use Palmolive for bathing and these results are accomplished. It does for your body what it does for the face.

If this seems extravagance, remember the modest price. The firm, long wearing cake of generous size costs but ten cents.

Our price secret

If Palmolive were made in small quantities it would be a very expensive soap. Palm and Olive oils are most costly soap ingredients, and come from overseas.

But the popularity which requires enormous production has reduced the price to that of ordinary soaps. The Palmolive factories work day and night, the rare oils are imported in such vast volume that the manufacturing cost is reduced.

Thus Palmolive, priced according to quality, would cost at least 25 cents, is yours for a modest 10 cents. You can afford this greatest of all luxuries for every toilet purpose.

Volume and efficiency produce 25-cent quality for only

CLOSED BANKS WERE LOOTED OF MILLIONS, DECLARES ALLEN

TELLS HOW CASH WAS LOST

dike, for violation of the banking laws, and that the bank's officials, in meeting the conditions imposed by Thorndike, actually made a secret and unlawful agreement with themselves which they secreted from Thorndike.

That the Tremont Trust Company falsified one tax return by at least $1,000,000.

That the loans made by the Tremont Trust Company to the Swig family and to corporations controlled by relatives of Vice-President Simon Swig exceeded $650,000.

That President Henry Chmielinski of the closed Hanover Trust still owes the bank $716,000, having made borrowings to the extent of $300,000, "for the most part in the name of other persons."

$60,000 TO McNARY

That the Fidelity Trust Company loaned $50,000 to Max Mitchell and $80,000 to Treasurer William S. McNary of the Hanover Trust Company, charging off the former Congressman's note as a total loss soon after the closing of the Hanover.

That a note given for $40,000 to the Fidelity by the law firm of Eaton & McKnight is unpaid and that the same firm guaranteed a substantial portion of a $177,000 loan to the Union Steel Casting Company, "no recovery being at present expected from the firm."

The junior partner of that firm is Edwin T. McKnight, who was active head of the Fidelity and was also president of the State Senate.

One of the interesting statements by Allen is that since prohibition went into effect the Cosmopolitan Trust Company loaned $319,279.13 to various persons and companies on liquor certificates.

"At no time during the past five years, as far as the commissioner has been able to ascertain, has the wholesale prices of liquors been as great as the amount loaned per gallon on these liquor certificates," he said.

MANY VENTURES.

"Most of the loans were made to a brother-in-law of the president of the Cosmopolitan Trust Company or upon straw notes, the makers of which also were borrowing from the president of the trust company. Constant effort has been made to sell this collateral, but it is difficult to dispose of this merchandise under present conditions in a proper and legitimate way. A large loss is inevitable."

Steamship companies, sugar cane plantations, shipyards, theatres, iron works, clothing firms, real estate ventures and candy companies were some of the business pursuits controlled by the bank officers or their relatives to which the bank's money was loaned with lavish hand, but one of the interesting ventures was suggested to Max Mitchell by an employe of the bank who was in Italy on business.

He wired Mitchell that by taking advantage of the rate of exchange a considerable profit could be made in buying diamonds and other articles. Mitchell sent him this cable: "All right. Buy fifty thousand jewelry and goods. Come home Credit."

The employe came back with $47,050 of diamonds, $231 of coral, $656 of lace, $54 of watercolors and $17,930 of lambskins, the purchase amounting to $59,000.

BANK CHOP FAILURE.

Mitchell also loaned $180,000 of the Cosmopolitan's funds to the Italian Importing Company, which in 1919 bought up a large portion of California's crop of dried olives. "Immediately upon taking possession of the Cosmopolitan Trust Company," said Allen, "the agent of the commission made attempts to find a market for these olives. Investigation showed they had so deteriorated in quality that no sale through ordinary channels could be made, and they were finally sold for about the value of the barrels."

Allen said he closed the Tremont Trust Company because he had been convinced that the capital of the trust company had become so impaired that probably the debts of the corporation exceeded its assets because the business of the trust company was then being conducted in an unsafe and unauthorized manner and without regard to certain laws regarding the management of banks.

It was the further opinion of the commissioner that if he permitted the trust company to continue business beyond that date he would be neglectful of his duty to the stockholders and depositors of the bank and to the public.

"This action, however, was not taken by the commissioner until after conference with the bank's representatives, and then the commissioner became satisfied beyond doubt that neither the officers nor the stockholders would take such action as he believed necessary to protect the interest of the company and the public."

REPEATEDLY WARNED.

He said he has had frequent conferences with the Tremont officers looking to the reopening of the bank "and at no time did I receive any assurance which led me to believe the requirements which I believed to be necessary for the protection of either stockholders or depositors of the bank or of the general public would be met.

"The records of the Bank Commissioner's office for several years before I came into office indicate that the Tremont Trust Company had repeatedly failed to observe important banking laws of the Commonwealth and that the officers of that institution during that time had been warned repeatedly that practices disapproved by the department must cease.

"In the early part of December, 1919, the then commissioner, Mr. Thorndike, called the attention of the officers to certain bad and doubtful loans, and the then commissioner stated the bank must stop business unless these loans were taken out of the bank and cash or good banking assets substituted for them.

"A substitution was made on the books of the company, but it has since been revealed that it was partly by means of unsecured notes of individuals, some of which were of a doubtful value.

"It was not until after the trust company had been closed by me that it was learned by this department that the cash and securities which were placed to the credit of the trust company, by order of Mr. Thorndike, were held by the bank subject to a secret agreement which permitted them to be drawn out without the knowledge of this department."

PAID BACK IN FULL.

Commissioner Allen said the officers voted that those among them who had contributed from their personal funds to make good the bad loans would be paid back in full by the bank at such time as they declared that the "exigency" no longer existed.

"Upon the basis of this agreement," said Allen, "Simon Swig, vice-president of the Trust Company, without further authority from the board of directors and without notice to this department, had apparently transferred $29,000 from the profit and loss account to his own private account; one director had been credited with the sum of $5,000 and finally on February 24, 1921, three days before the bank was closed, at a time when there were constant negotiations between the office of the commissioner and the bank relative to the terms on which the bank might continue to do business, a vote was passed to the effect that any exigency had ceased to exist and that all sums contributed in December, 1919, to the profit and loss account should be returned to the contributors."

Allen said that in one day's run on the bank, $1,000,000 had been withdrawn. During the moratorium declared by the bank, notices of proposed withdrawals of $900,000 had been filed by savings depositors. When the bank was taken over the deposits totalled $13,800,000. The bank showed a loss of $32,000 in the six months prior to the closing, he said.

ILLEGAL DIVIDENDS.

"The examination," he said, "showed bad and doubtful loans amounting approximately to $2,100,000. Subsequent knowledge has revealed that the losses on bad and doubtful loans may well be not less than $2,500,000."

Many of the dividends paid by the Swig bank were illegal, Allen said. He said that on August 31, 1920, a dividend of $45,828.84 was paid, although the amount available for a dividend was only $32,770.61, and the entry of the dividend was not made on the books until October.

He said on September 30, 1920, a dividend was paid of $41,000, although no earnings for a dividend were available. The following month the amount available for a dividend was $5,084.39, but a dividend of $42,000 was declared.

Allen said the bank's advertising was untrue and misleading. During the six months prior to the closing of the bank $86,000 was expended for advertising. Allen said that Swig advertised that "deposits may be withdrawn at any time without loss of interest," when, as a matter of fact, deposits might remain for fifty-nine days and yet receive no interest.

FALSE ADVERTISING.

He said during the moratorium Swig advertised "but a very minute part of the depositors have given us a ninety days' notice of withdrawal, totaling in all about $50,000," when the notices of withdrawal totaled $950,000. He said the bank advertised that business was so brisk the bank was oblivious to loan large sums of money to cities and towns at a time when the Tremont was actually borrowing $350,000 and its depositors were unable to withdraw their money on demand.

Allen said that the Tremont took fifteen mortgages of $35,000 each on twenty-eight apartment houses from one Dobbins of Brookline intended to build. When the bank was instructed that these mortgages exceeded the legal limit, the bank finally foreclosed and traded that property for the Tomfobrde estate on Court street, where the Tremont intended to build a new home.

The bank commissioner protested that the amount to be invested in the new bank property was in excess of the legal limit and Allen charges that a corporation known as the Scollay Realty Company was quickly formed and the Tomfobrde property conveyed to it. The bank then accepted fifteen straw notes totaling $750,000, secured by the entire capital stock of the newly-formed realty company, Allen said.

COAKLEY RELATIONS.

Allen said that Swig mortgaged his home on Humboldt avenue to the bank for $25,000. The mortgage was never recorded, he said, but was retained in the vault in the personal office of President Asa P. French. Allen said that after the Tremont was closed Swig mortgaged his home to the Guaranty Security Corporation for $25,000. He charges that the latter mortgage supersedes the one which Swig failed to record and that Swig has failed to pay that mortgage to the bank.

The relations between the Tremont, as represented by Simon and by his son, Benjamin Swig, with Daniel H. Coakley, "are so confused and complicated," Allen said, as to defy a brief description. He said a partial settlement has been made by which Coakley has paid in cash of $346,000 to take up his notes, has released all claims to about $150,000 standing in his name on the books and has, in turn, filed a proof of claim against the bank of $270,000.

"Much newspaper notoriety has been given to the so-called Swig family loans," said Allen, "and many statements have been published by Simon Swig to the effect that the Tremont Trust Company has not suffered loss on account of transactions with him or his family.

"The fundamental fact, however, remains, that there are in the possession of the trust company (today) notes which remain unpaid amounting to many hundreds of thousands of dollars, which are signed by members of the Swig family or by corporations of which they are the principal owners, or signed by persons without financial standing, the proceeds of the latter inuring to the benefit of Simon Swig or one of his sons."

SWIG LOANS $657,000.

The total of the Swig family loans is $657,000. Two of the sons, with notes of $12,500, are said by Allen to be in the pauper-debtor courts.

Allen said he began his investigation of the Hanover Trust Company when he learned that Charles Ponzi was banking there and had bought stock in the bank. Ponzi had bought $150,000 of stock, he found out. He said he feared sudden withdrawals of Ponzi's deposits to meet his own clamoring depositors might ruin the Hanover.

Ponzi had a certificate of deposit of $1,500,000 in the Hanover. Allen ordered the bank to make no payments until the time of the certificate expired, but he learned Ponzi had made three loans of $80,000 each "on straw names."

The latter learned that the three loans, totalling nearly $250,000, had been paid by being charged to the account of Ponzi or his agencies. Ponzi's drafts of $340,000 on other banks had been returned, dishonored.

His balance at the close of the day was $13,000. Two days later he had overdrawn in the Hanover by $250,000. The next day the overdrafts amounted to $440,000 and the sum was taken from the certificate of deposit.

DEMAND $1,580,000.

Ponzi's trustees now ask the closed bank for the entire $1,580,000, plus interest, Allen said, because they claim the drafts allowed to be made against the certificate of deposit by the bank officers were illegal. They ask for $180,000 which Ponzi paid for bank stock, claiming the stock issue was illegal.

They also claim $44,842.43 which appears in the bank under the name of Lucy Martelli, Ponzi's bookkeeper. Allen says the Ponzi people claim $750,000 which is not theirs.

Allen said that Chmielinski started the purchase of the old Journal building, in which the Hanover was situated, by borrowing $100,000 "by means of straw notes." The building stood in his name. There were three mortgages of $45,000.

Allen said Chmielinski admitted indebtedness to the bank on this account of $716,000, which he has reduced to $276,000. "Mr. Chmielinski recently filed a petition in bankruptcy," said Allen, "and there is little hope of securing a substantial recovery from the signers of his notes." Allen can't find a purchaser for the building.

Allen said he called upon the stockholders of the Hanover to pay $100 for every share of stock held by them in order to help make up the deficit for the benefit of the depositors. He has been able to get but $5,381 from the shareholders, he says.

PRUDENTIAL CLOSING

The investigation which led to the closing of the Prudential began, Allen said, when the president and treasurer of the bank called on him and said the Boston Dredging Company and its officers had borrowed $125,000 from the bank and had been told by the treasurer without the knowledge of the other officers, they claimed.

The treasurer was discharged, Allen said he later found out that the company actually owed the bank $137,000, that the company failed, and although the officers of the bank gave personal notes to make up $125,000 of the loss, the notes remain unpaid.

Allen said that one Harry B. Brown, a real estate speculator and builder, who operated "sometimes under his own name, sometimes under the name of a dummy, sometimes under the name of his clerk," owed the Prudential $191,000. Many of the Brown notes were transferred from the commercial to the savings department in violation of the law, Allen claimed, and to the jeopardy of the savings deposits.

The small bank had $128,000 of hopeless notes, Allen said, and when the run began, following the Ponzi and Hanover scare, the bank was unable to withstand the shock.

This bank will pay 3½ per cent. to the savings depositors and there is about enough to pay 16 2-3 per cent. to the commercial section depositors, he said.

Following the other bank collapses, about $4,000,000 was withdrawn from the Cosmopolitan in three months, he said. Then Mitchell conferred with him and agreed that the bank ought to be closed.

Allen then went on to describe many of the alleged illegal loans, for which he has brought suit against the directors for $5,000,000. "Several millions of dollars of the trust company's funds," he said, "were invested in notes of companies in which the president of the trust company was directly interested as owner or as the controlling factor."

Bank Closing Bills Backed by Swig Are Rejected

The committee on Banks and Banking reported leave to withdraw on the several bills asked for by Simon Swig and his son, Judge Louis Swig.

Under the proposed bills the former banker and his son sought to curb the power of the bank commissioner in closing banks.

30 P. C. More April 15 for Prudential Depositors

Justice James P. Carroll of Superior Court today authorized Bank Commissioner Joseph C. Allen to pay a dividend of 30 per cent. to depositors in the savings department of the Prudential Trust Company and a dividend of 16 2-3 per cent. to depositors in the commercial department of the same company.

The liquidating agent of the company states that the dividends will be payable about April 15.

What Depositors Will Get From Closed Trust Companies

How much money will the depositors get back from the closed trust companies? Bank Commissioner Allen made these statements in his report:

The Prudential—Has cash enough to pay savings depositors 100 per cent., and commercial depositors 16 2-3 per cent.

The Hanover—Paid 50 per cent. to savings depositors. All future amounts depend on court decisions.

The Cosmopolitan—Has paid 40 per cent. to savings. Hopes to pay 25 per cent. more shortly.

The Fidelity — Depositors were taken over by the Liberty Trust.

The Tremont — Has paid 33 1-3 per cent., amounting to $3,000,000. Cash now on hand $1,890,000 in the commercial and $865,000 in savings department. About $5,000,000 of "paper" on hand, $2,750,000 not yet due.

BLACKHEADS GO QUICK BY THIS SIMPLE METHOD

Blackheads—big ones or little ones—soft ones or hard ones—on any part of the body, go quickly by a simple method that just dissolves them. To do this get about two ounces of calonite powder from your druggist —sprinkle a little on a wet sponge—rub over the blackheads briskly for a few seconds—and wash off. You'll wonder where the blackheads have gone. The pores are tender and the hot water have just dissolved these. Pinching and squeezing blackheads only open the pores of the skin and leave them open and unsightly—and unless the blackheads are big and ugly they will not come out, while the simple application of calonite powder and water dissolves them right out, leaves the skin soft and the pores in their natural condition. You can get calonite powder at any drug store and if you are bothered with these unsightly blemishes you should certainly try this simple method.

Just Apply This Paste and the Hairs Will Vanish

(Boudoir Secrets)

The judicious use of a delatone paste insures any woman a clear, hairless skin. Mix some paste to a stiff consistency with water, then apply to the objectionable hairs for two or three minutes. When the paste is removed, and the skin washed, every trace of hair will have vanished. No pain attends the use of the delatone and it will not mar the most sensitive skin, but to insure results, see that you get real delatone.

MAJESTIC HAS HOST OF GOOD ENTERTAINERS

George Rasley, Tenor, Pleases Audience With Group of Love Songs

George Rasley, tenor soloist, with a group of love songs, is the best number on a splendid bill of vaudeville at the Majestic Theatre this week. Rasley is a very wholesome looking young man with shining brown eyes and a voice that carried "Macushla" and his other songs to the very hearts of his audience.

Awarding him the palm of the program does not cast discredit on any of the other numbers for there are several high class acts and not weak sister on the bill.

Al and Harry Klein, in airy-fairy persiflage, repartee, bon mots and small talk had the audience convulsed. One of the two brothers has wit as sharp as a rapier. He was clever in retort, while the other's launch was most infectious.

Charles King and Lila Rhodes also contributed generous fun. King presented a group of songs and dances and a very entertaining act. King interjected his songs very cleverly. Their act proved something different from the stereotyped stilted numbers and it went over big for that reason.

Paul, Le Van and Miller, acrobats and tumblers and knockabout comedians; also Russ Leddy and Company in the farce "Surgeon Louder," written by Higgins and Company with Betty Peerce, in Lewis Allen Browne's unrivaled manner, in humorous farce "Old Chetney." Frank W. Batford, assisted by Marie Stone and Alec Brody and Boehler, a legless contortionist, in the playlet "Rip Van Winkle's Dream," in which he gave wonderful proof of ability as a whistler. Arthur Barat and Seymour and Jeannette were also on the program.

TREMONT THEATRE — "Welcome Stranger" started in at the Tremont Theatre the last part of the second successful week of its engagement.

NEW PLAY SEEN AT SELWYN IS NOVELTY

"The Emperor Jones," Starring Gilpin, Almost a One-Man Cast

By FRED J. McISAAC.

"The Emperor Jones," a play which has caused more commotion in New York than any eight others during the last season or two, has come to the Selwyn with the original cast.

The original cast consists of Charles S. Gilpin, for "The Emperor Jones" is almost a one man band. More remarkable still, the man is a gentleman of color.

Mr. Gilpin gave a performance last night lasting about two hours in which he ran the gamut of all the emotions and feelings that there are—and Eugene O'Neill, the author, can think of more awful emotions than any other person now at large.

The truth is that, judging by "The Emperor Jones," Gilpin is a really great actor. Of course he is called upon to play a negro, a type which he doubtless knows very well, but it takes real acting to curdle the blood of any audience, and this he succeeds in doing.

"The Emperor Jones" is a former Pullman porter who has made himself ruler of a negro island in the West Indies. When we first see him he is gorgeously uniformed; a highly sophisticated rascal. But the natives have revolted and he feels it is time for him to vacate his throne.

While his subjects are debating in the hills as to the details of demise, Jones takes to the woods. It is necessary for him to walk all night through a forest to reach the seacoast and safety.

At first he is very brash, but gradually the forest gets hold of him. He begins to see things in the dark. Ghosts appear. His former crimes haunt him. He sheds one by one his gorgeous garments until he is just a naked negro slinking through the bush. He reverts back to the ideas of his ancestors. And in the morning he finds himself back where he started, and is promptly murdered by his subjects.

The first scene of this weird drama is a dialogue between Jones and a Cockney, who trades with the natives. This is poorly written, undramatic, long drawn out and highly uninteresting.

During the remaining seven scenes Jones talks to himself. Modern playwrights have banned the soliloquy as unrealistic. This is a play which is nothing but a monologue. During the entire action of the piece there is a background of tom-toms, always sounding. They get on the nerves of the audience, and drive the "emperor" frantic.

Aside from the amazing acting of Gilpin in one of the longest parts ever given to one performer there is little to say about "The Emperor Jones." O'Neil might have hunted the world over and found nobody else who could make anything of his fantastic bit of imagining.

The play was preceded by a comedy called "Suppressed Desires," in two scenes. It was not well played and not worth playing, except as it was, for a curtain raiser.

The performance last night was a testimonial to Fred S. Wright and a host of the friends of the veteran showman were on hand.

MOTION PICTURE NEWS

By FRIEDA DAVIS

SMALL wonder that Loew's State Theatre was filled yesterday, for Harold Lloyd is holding forth in one of the best comedies he has yet made, which he has called "A Made Man," in which he gives the hardest kind of a job to his comedian. Your garments will undoubtedly wrinkle and your head will decline position. The other feature picture on the bill is Frank Mayo in "Tracked to Earth," which is far funnier than the producer intended it to be.

HAROLD LLOYD

To my mind Lloyd ranks with Chaplin as the list of comedians. "A Sailor-Made Man" gives him every possible opportunity for laugh-getters without once resorting to custard pies. In this respect he and Chaplin seem to stand alone, for they are able to forego entirely that crop of slapstick comedy. Larry Semon and the cross-eyed Ben Turpin seem to depend on them to an appalling extent.

Here we see Lloyd as the casual idle son of the idle rich. He saunters about Palm Beach or Coronado or wherever it is, taking whatever he wants without as much as finding out to whom it belongs. Having calmly appropriated a Wall Street magnate's chair, he asks that individual for a match, and proceeds to light it on the magnate's hat.

When he announces to the heroine's father that he has decided to marry the daughter, the father waxes eloquent on the subject of "work." "Get a job" is the verdict. Lloyd nods pleasantly and saunters off after a job.

"Wanted—Men for the navy" greets his roving eyes. "Get a job!" He goes on reading. "See the world!" And he steps into the recruiting office to inform them that he has decided to join their navy. The recruiting officer looks him over for the space of 30 seconds, and sends him up quickly before Lloyd can change his mind.

Going back to the hotel he sees the heroine, Mildred Davis, who tells him that they are going on a yachting trip around the world and counting him among the guests. Lloyd turns without a word and goes back to the recruiting office. "I've decided not to join your navy," he announces. The officer in charge simply grabs him around the waist and rushes him into the enlistment office. "And I've decided that you're joining it for three years!"

Then the fun begins. Lloyd is marched off with a crew of "gobs" and eventually he meets Mildred and the fashionable party in some unpronounceable Indian port. Here he is called upon to do acrobatic Douglas Fairbanks stunts in rescuing Mildred from the white rajah, who has had her abducted, and it is all quite like "The Sheik." The action is a sequence of the most entertaining incidents possible. Lloyd even manages to get in quantities of new "stunts."

No one, short of the complex Merton Gill, could help getting thorough enjoyment out of "A Sailor-Made Man."

TRACKED TO EARTH.

FRANK MAYO has been stirred up, say dispatches from Hollywood with the Robertson-Cole forces as a star. This is good news indeed, for Mayo is far too good for such productions as "Tracked to Earth" and those in which he has been appearing. Seldom is his story even convincing. No one less than Frank Mayo could "get them gyrs" at all.

Plays That Remain

WILBUR THEATRE — "Main Street," dramatized from Sinclair Lewis' widely read novel, with Alma Tell and McKay Morris in the leading roles, started on its last week in Boston at the Wilbur Theatre last evening.

SHUBERT THEATRE — A gorgeous and colorful revue with beautiful scenics, a wonderful novelty in the transformation episode and brimful of delightful humor is the third annual production of the Greenwich Village Follies now at the Shubert Theatre, where it is being presented by the Bohemian, Inc.

HOLLIS STREET THEATRE — Last night began the second week of the engagement at the Hollis Street Theatre of "Dulcy," a comedy by George Kaufman and Marc Connelly.

COLONIAL THEATRE—The third annual edition of George White's "Scandals" began the second week of the engagement at the Colonial Theatre last night, before an enthusiastic audience. This year's offering exceeds in splendor of production and artistery all previous efforts of this youthful producer.

PLYMOUTH THEATRE — Miss Lotus Robb makes a big contrast in her attire in the first scene of her act in "The Green Goddess" at the Plymouth Theatre.

PARK THEATRE — "Foolish Wives" began the fourth week of its engagement at the Park Theatre yesterday. The personal appearances of Maude George, who so ably aids Von Stroheim in the development of his villainies as the arch conspirator of the picture's story, added considerable interest to the showings.

TREMONT TEMPLE—The tremendous popularity which has characterized the showings of William Fox's supreme photo production, "Monte Cristo," at Tremont Temple has continued on into its third week and gives every evidence of being a record-breaking production.

Other Theatres

ORPHEUM THEARTE—Keen interest is being manifested in the showing of the motion picture taken during the stay of the galaxy of motion picture stars who were the guests of Marcus Loew at the opening of the new State Theatre, shown at Loew's Orpheum Theatre this week. The remainder of the bill includes the showing of William Fox's newly established screen star, John Gilbert, in a thrilling adventure of the north woods, "Gleam o' Dawn," and a delightful vaudeville program headed by "Tilda and Her Jazz Band," featuring Miss Gertrude Angell and a youthful, as well as beautiful supporting cast.

GORDON'S OLYMPIA — "King Solomon, Jr.," was the title of the spectacular, delightfully funny farcical comedy, presenting Franklyn Ardell and a large cast of players which headed the vaudeville bill yesterday. Supporting Franklyn Ardell were several acts including Florence Madeira and Jean Thomas. The action of the piece takes place in 1959 and many original, sparkingly clever situations arise. The settings and costumes were gorgeous and the singing and dancing numbers were superb.

WALDRON'S CASINO—Waldron's Casino was the scene of uproarious merriment yesterday when the big three-in-one continuous performances presented a rollicking burlesque, "The World of Frolic," with Sliding Billy Watson as the chief comedian; a fascinatingly interesting photo play, "The Fire Eater," starring Lloyd Gibson, and a bill of splendid vaudeville acts.

BOM BALLET INTIME SEEN AT SHUBERT

Special Performance Introduces "Krazy Kat" Novelty Based on Cartoons

Under the auspices of American Friends of Musicians in France, and for the rebuilding of the School of Music in Rheims, the Adolph Bolm Ballet Intime gave a special performance at the Shubert Theatre yesterday afternoon.

A very excellent orchestra, under the direction of Carlos Salzedo, provided music for the dancing.

The feature of the program was a ballet entitled, "Krazy Kat," based upon the familiar cartoons in the Boston American. The ballet was written by Herriman, author of the cartoons, and it introduced his favorite characters, Kat, Officer Pup, Bill Poster, Joe Stork and Ignatz, the mouse.

The story was very amusing, and it was danced to really delightful music, composed by John Alden Carpenter, music which was quite jazzy in character as well as being musicianly. Bolm, as Krazy Kat, in a weird costume, which really looked like the funny picture, distinguished himself. So did Bella Kosina, as Ignatz, the mouse, and the other members of the cast.

The remainder of the program consisted of a number of ballet divertissements, which introduced Ruth Page, Enid Brunton, Stella Bloch and Ulysses Graham.

SOMERVILLE THEATRE—A distinct personal triumph was scored by charming Enid Markey, leading lady of the popular Somerville Players, in yesterday's presentation of "Eyes of the Storm Country," before large and enthusiastic audiences. This delightful play was dramatized by Rupert Hughes from the novel of like name by Grace Miller White. Holding her audience in sway, Miss Markey carried them from rollicking laughter into the realm of tears and as quickly whisked them back again. It was most alluring, whimsical manner.

MODERN AND BEACON—Frivolous in title though Fame Chicken" may be, this photoplay, with Bebe Daniels pictured in the leading role and shown for the first time in Boston yesterday at the Modern and Beacon Theatres, has no ruggedness and stirring a story to merit such frivolity. It is a modern romance deserving appraisal as melodrama, and there is variety and plenty of incident of the absorbing and thrilling kind to afford full satisfaction.

GAYETY THEATRE—A show of snap, frivolity and genuine merriment was presented at the Gayety Theatre yesterday when "The Big Jamboree," a James J. Cooper production, opened a week's engagement. Heading a big company of clever entertainers is Frank Hunter, breezy, fun-loving comedian. His mannerisms are extremely droll, and he fairly rollicks through his comical role.

BOSTON THEATRE—George Arliss, a prime Boston favorite on the stage, makes his local debut as a screen star in "The Ruling Passion," being shown for the first time exclusively at the Boston Theatre this week. Mr. Arliss portrays two distinct roles in this illustration of an Earl Derr Biggers' story.

FILM FAVORITE HEADS BILL AT KEITH'S

Bessie Barriscale Appearing in Person in Playlet of Much Charm

A bill of unusual excellence greets the patron of B. F. Keith's Theatre this week. Bessie Barriscale, film star, appearing in person in a novelty playlet, proves her right to the premier position on the program, but there are several acts running each other pretty close competition for second place.

Miss Barriscale's playlet, called "Reckless Youth," permits the star to display her talents in a variety of roles and her deft handling of each role surprised admirers of her work on the silver screen.

Fanny Duggan, New England ballroom favorite, is at Keith's this week with a dancing act in which he is assisted by Miss Anna Pierce and Bert Lowe's seven-piece orchestra.

Walter and Emily Walters are two of the cleverest ventriloquists in vaudeville. Jay Velie presents a well-balanced singing and dancing act with the aid of Kathleen Hitchins, Kathleen Robinson and the Blossom Sisters.

Delson, colored comedian, offers a whirlwind of steps and not a few laughs. Others on the program are Adelaide Hall, George Jessel, Bob Anderson and Pelo Pony, and Willie Hale and Brother.

OLD SOUTH THEATRE—All that heart throb and delightful comedy which made the play, "Turn to the Right" one of the most popular offerings of the stage has been preserved in the screen version which yesterday was shown as the big feature of the program at Gordon's Old South Theatre. And, in addition, there is the added beauty which only can be attained in pictures, which makes this film of John Golden's stage success by Winchell Smith and John E. Hazzard one that no lover of the artistic and dramatic will wish to miss.

SCALLAY SQUARE OLYMPIA—"The Wife Hunters," a miniature musical comedy and twinkled with fun and melody, starring Guy Voyer and the Swell Sisters in a big company of players, is the headline offering on the vaudeville bill this week. Another set of headline calibre was the "Southern Revue," a novelty in Dixieland introduced by several singing, dancing and musical specialties.

HARVARD PRIZE PLAY AT THE ST. JAMES

"The End of the Bridge," the famous Harvard prize play, is the play of the week at the St. James Theatre.

While the lines of the piece are more or less familiar to Boston theatregoers, the drama, nevertheless, promises to be a popular piece during the remainder of its run. Last night the play was welcomed by a full house.

The characters are in apt hands. Especially commendable is the acting of Marion Goad, who plays the difficult role of Peter, the crippled boy. Frank Charlton is an admirable Dr. John Garret and Mark Kent wins approval as Felix Marlett.

SAILORS AT LOEW'S NEW STATE THEATRE

Escorted by the Navy Yard Brass Band more than 200 sailors, many of them stationed at the Charlestown Navy Yard and others assigned to ships anchored here, marched to Loew's State Theatre in Washington street avenue last evening and attended the performance as the guests of the management. Just before entering the huge auditorium a concert was given in front of the theatre, attracting an immense crowd. Particular interest attached to the presence of the men in uniform in consequence of the showing for the first time in Boston of Harold Lloyd's newest comedy "A Sailor-Made Man."

SALES TAX FOR BONUS FIGHT IN SENATE

Revenue Method to Be Championed in Committee by Leaders

By International News Service.

Washington, March 28.—The Senate will pass a soldiers' bonus bill at the present session, according to predictions today by leaders on both sides.

The big fight in the Senate will be centered on the effort of Republicans to include a sales tax as a provision for raising funds with which to pay the bonus. This will meet with organized resistance.

Administration leaders were averse to pressing when an effort will be made to bring about bonus legislation. The consensus of opinion was that the measure will follow the tariff bill now before the Senate Finance Committee. It is likely the bonus bill will be debated in committee behind closed doors for two weeks.

The sales tax method of raising bonus revenue will be championed in the committee by Senator Reed Smoot, Republican, of Utah and Senator Penrose, Republican, of Pennsylvania. The Democratic side will be championed by Senator Edge, Republican, New Jersey, who is known as a staunch friend of the sales tax principle.

Senator Simmons of North Carolina, it was indicated, will lead the fight for raising bonus funds from profits on the foreign debt. Other views are shared by Senator Weeks of Massachusetts and Senator Frelinghuysen of Maryland, both of whom will support him in his fight and by a number of administration Senators.

A canvass of Senators showed that Edge, Frelinghuysen and Smoot are joined by Calder of New York and Willis of Ohio in support of a sales tax provision. Those attitude was ultimately be supported by Senators Curtis of Kansas and Dillingham of Vermont in a letter keeping all the members of the Finance Committee.

It will be up to the author of a bonus bill should he neglect to include the provision. Senator Spencer of Missouri failed to add most of the Republican members.

On the Democratic side, Harrison, Walsh of Massachusetts and Simmons will be joined by Robinson of Arkansas, Harris and Walsh of Montana in supporting the bonus measure.

Senator Simmons, in opposition on the Democratic side was joined from Indiana by the minority leader Senator Ralston and Senator Pittman of Nevada. Their opposition however is not expected to gain much additional support.

MEN OF ENTIRE CITY GROW BEARDS FOR FETE

LET'S GO! Perfume crowds heavy on the atmosphere here—an idyl of the San Gorgonio Valley, California, showing an almond orchard in full bloom. Verily, gentle Spring is "doing her stuff!" with a vengeance. (International)

CLAY MODEL of the bust of William Pitt, for whom the city of Pittsburgh was named in 1785, which will be formally presented to the municipality on May 8 The Marquis of Cambridge and other British notables will attend (Underwood)

A RACY MOVIE! Frank Kruphat, partner of Walter Rutt in the recent six-day bicycle race at Madison Square Garden, has gone into the movies in Germany. He is here pictured with Fyn Eva, German film star. All he does in the film is risk his neck six or seven times. (Wide World)

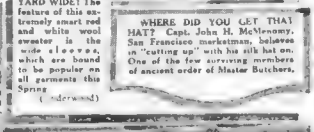
FERRYING FORTH! The Filipino can get almost anywhere if he has a few inches of water to float his outrigger canoe. This ferry is not quite up to date, but is just as effective as one of steam.

RUBBER! That's what makes this new purse for women ideal for bathers. It may be worn either on the arm or elsewhere. This young lady prefers to wear hers elsewhere. The entire pocketbook is fashioned of rubber so that there is no chance of getting the money wet. (International)

ALL UP IN THE AIR! Capt. George Augur, right, went down to the pier to meet Mr. and Mrs. Van Dreyson of Germany, who considered themselves real tall until they saw the captain. With them is little Fips, less than three feet tall. All circus folk. (Wide World)

TAKING THE AIR! Not since the airplane was perfected has so much interest been shown an invention as the radio phone. Here is a sample of the handsome receiving devices that are now being put on the market. This one looks like a costly console table. Will receive messages for a distance of 1,000 miles. (International)

GETTING BY ON A PUSH! This novel one-rail push car was one of the features of the annual commercial fair at Leipzig, Germany. The car is balanced by means of a pole at one side which also serves for use in tipping and righting the car when the contents are dumped. Ideal for farm work.



ALL WOOL AND YARD WIDE! The feature of this extremely smart red and white wool sweater is the wide sleeves, which are bound to be popular on all garments this Spring (Underwood)

STILL THEY COME! Two police sergeants followed a pair of fighting bulldogs into an areaway in Chicago and ran right into the biggest illicit still yet found in Illinois. Four 1,500-gallon tanks like the one above were also brought to light. (International)

ARRANGEMENTS have been completed for the unveiling of the General U. S. Grant statue in Washington on April 27. Miss Bertha Cantacuseno (above), great-granddaughter of the General, will take part in the exercises. (Underwood)

THESE LITTLE SHAVERS ARE WHISKING THINGS OFF! However, the victims in the chair are going to brush up—that is, they are going to grow a full beard in ten weeks as part of the celebration at Sacramento, Cal., when the entire city will be turned, during a week in May, into a '49 camp as in the days of the gold rush in California. This shows the start of the whisker race. The chap with the longest and glossiest beard wins the first prize. During the celebration all autos will be barred off the main street, and only ox teams allowed. The women will dress exactly as their grandmothers did in '49. (Underwood)

HOW TO GET COLORED CLOTHES CLEAN WITHOUT FADING THEM

Colored clothes seem to get more than their share of dirt. Play-clothes the children romp in—colored shirts and overalls the men work in—house dresses and kitchen aprons.

Haven't you done three-fourths of your washboard rubbing on those things? Rubbed till the color came out with the dirt?

Don't rub them again. Just soak them clean in Rinso suds. A half hour in these big lasting suds gently loosens all the dirt without weakening a single thread. Only the worst spots of all need a light rubbing. Try a little dry Rinso on these.

Rinso, the new kind of soap, is replacing bar soap in American homes.

HANDSOME NEW HOME WELL UNDER WAY FOR NORFOLK GOLF CLUB

"Al" Rydstrom, the busy bee of Norfolk, does things up brown, once he starts. Three weeks ago ground was broken for the handsome new clubhouse which will be ready for occupancy by the middle of May.

The foundations are laid, the frame is up and part of the boarding has been [illegible]. By April [illegible] the [illegible] will be [illegible] the exterior construction [illegible] and work will start on the [illegible].

The first floor will [illegible] [illegible] for [illegible] lockers [illegible] [illegible] of [illegible] [illegible] members and guests, also tournaments and special occasions.

On this floor there will be also a gentleman's lounging room furnished with tables, chairs and couches for the players who are interrupted in play by a sudden cloudburst or for those who would linger to play the nineteenth hole.

* * *

The main floor will consist of a large entertainment or dancing hall, mess rooms and a most up-to-date cuisine. A ladies' parlor also will be on this floor. Both lounging rooms will [illegible] with [illegible] a large hospitable fireplace.

The third or top floor will be so constructed as to provide eight or ten rooms for those who might care to spend the night on the Westwood hills for a round the next day.

Norfolk members will be congratulated for securing of the services of Peter Burke as greenkeeper. His success in building and developing the Nashua Country Club has been generally proclaimed. For six years he was at Nashua following a seven-year service at the Country Club, Brookline.

Most of the course changes are not of an extensive order, but are such that when completed they will provide for a much more satisfactory round of golf for all.

Norfolk, with its rolling slopes, valleys and dry, sandy soil, is a natural golf course and needs but little cultivation and but few artificial hazards. However, there are some holes where the turf formation is stubbly and poor and a little harrowing, fertilizer, water and special grass seeds are agencies which should work wonders.

Number one green will be made larger by extending to the right fifteen feet. The second green will be raised in back which will make the hole easy to the pitch. The third tee will be enlarged. The fourth fairway [illegible] the [illegible] and clubhouse, a [illegible] is [illegible] the tee, will be made over as the ground has grown sour. Many a good tee shot here has lodged in an unplayable lie. Several conferences with an expert convinced the green committee that a change was very much in order.

To the left of this fairway the stone wall will be taken down and a fairway of twenty feet increase in width will save some good shots, which heretofore have gone astray, and also the removal of the wall will penalize many players who will be out of luck and their ball will no [illegible] the fairway [illegible].

[illegible] which was re[illegible] year [illegible] of the [illegible] green will be [illegible] in the [illegible] ready for play [illegible].

[illegible] will be enlarged [illegible] top of the hill on [illegible] with the green, where the too[illegible] house is located, will be cut back some twenty yards and will give this fairway a width of eighty feet. A drive will then be possible in direct line with the green.

The fairgreen immediately in front of this green will be resown, as the fourth by the road, and will assure better results for a well played approach which, as the turf is now, puts a premium on luck.

The sixth will not be changed [illegible]. Prospects for a longer seventh [illegible] and a much better tee and get[illegible] plans have not been adopted.

The back of the seventh green will be banked and sodded so that any ball pitched to the green cannot jump over the green as formerly, when the stone wall and underbrush ruined many a good score.

The eighth fairway will be swung to the left a bit, parallel with the first fairway, although it will still be possible to play this hole by the old route, if preferable.

The ninth green will be trapped in front, about twenty-five yards away, so that a topped or rolling hit will ultimately land where it belongs.

[illegible] to golfers [illegible] that [illegible] twenty-five limited members will be taken in and anybody who wants to [illegible] his chance to get in at Norfolk and should get in touch with Al Rydstrom at No. 68 Essex street while the door is open.

Limited players cannot play Saturday afternoons, holidays or Sunday mornings. All other time is open to play. Not bad at all for $50, with the chance of being a regular member not far off. The present male membership is 175. There are thirty women members enrolled.

Donald Ross is expected back from the South the last of this week to start on his [illegible] work at Franklin Park. In the meantime all play has been temporarily suspended at Scarboro.

Fred Lowe returns next Monday to [illegible] Hyannisport. One of the most entrancing seaside course views is obtained here from the clubhouse and play is visible from the veranda on all the holes but two and part of a third fairway. This will be Lowe's third season on the Cape.

HARVARD TRACK COACH HAS A HARD TASK

Only One of Squad Was Point Winner in Intercollegiate Championships

With only one man back in college who got a point in last year's intercollegiates, Coach Bill Bingham is putting his cinder path aspirants through the first stages of the long and difficult trail that will end with the big intercollegiate meet late in May.

There were a dozen new candidates added to the group of 100 varsity men and fifty-five freshmen who appeared at the opening workout.

The Harvard coach has an extremely hard task before him. Last year he had a star quintet of point winners who won the Princeton meet and startled the entire athletic world by remarkable performances in the intercollegiates in which they finished second to California, trailing the boys from the land of the sunset by a scant half point.

Ned Gourdin, the great broad-jumper, George Krogness, who won three places in that memorable meet, Captain Dinnie O'Connell and Jim Tolbert are all among the missing.

So with Fiske Brown as the nucleus, Bill Bingham and Eddie Farrell are starting to build all over again. The shoes of the great Krogness will be partially filled, it is hoped, by Roscoe Fitts, the Crimson halfback. The Brookline boy won the 220-yard hurdles against Princeton last year and has turned in time close to twenty-five seconds for the event. He has also done 6.11 in the high jump.

MEDBURY

Says the Less the Women Put On the Longer It Takes Them to Do It

Girls all over the country are solving the high cost of dressing by living together and wearing the same clothes. This seems impossible; most dresses aren't big enough to cover one, let alone two.

Two girls, each with a wardrobe, put their clothes together and what do they have—a fight.

If they only have one evening dress between them they can both go to parties—but not on the same night.

Already you see ads in the papers which read, "Girl with a rubber rain coat would like to room with lady who has an opera cape."

They both go to bed at the same time, but the one who hears the alarm clock first will be the best dressed one for the day.

The foxy girl will soon be going to sleep with both eyes open.

She'll keep one on her roommate and the other on her clothes.

If she has a glass eye she'll have to stay awake with the good one.

That's where hooks and eyes originated. A girl kept her eye on the dress so her roommate wouldn't hook it.

Of course the same dame can't go to parties two nights in succession. If she goes out tonight and expects to go out again tomorrow night, she's afraid to go home.

The best system would be for a ninety-pound Jane to room with a two-hundred-and-fifty pounder, and then they could both go out in the same dress.

Of course it would be extra weight for the big dame to carry, but what's ninety pounds among room mates?

The material in dresses is getting fewer all the time, and when a dame shows you some wearing apparel you don't know whether it's a handkerchief or an evening gown.

But the less they put on the longer it takes them to do it.

When you call for your girl and have to wait an hour, she isn't dressing all that time. It only takes her ten minutes to put her clothes on, but she has to spend fifty minutes getting her room mate's permission.

KILOURY WILL REFEREE MAT COMBAT

Will Officiate in the Mahmout-Stecker Wrestling Match at Mechanics Building

Captain Joe Kiloury, the snappy wrestling referee, will officiate in the match between Joe Stecker and Mahmout at Mechanics Building tomorrow night, a fact that will be pleasing to the Boston fans who have watched him work in the past.

Kiloury was agreeable to both the noted wrestlers, as he knows the game thoroughly, is absolutely impartial and has the nerve to enforce his rulings. Another thing is that he keeps the men traveling at top speed, when this is necessary.

Stecker and Mahmout, however, will hardly need urging, as both are at their top form and that means a display of scientific mat work that will be a rare treat to Promoter Tuohey's patrons.

Nat Pendleton, the Olympic champion, and Frank Jedlinski, the Harvard coach, are both in superb condition for their session, while Gardini and Stengel in the semi-final promise plenty of fireworks.

Promoter Tuohey says the indications are good for a big turnout of fans.

INTEREST IN WRESTLING BOUTS AT OPERA HOUSE

Much interest is centered in the wrestling bouts at the Grand Opera House on Thursday night.

George Calzo, known as the Italian heavyweight champion, will take on Milo Steinborn.

Calzo has not yet been defeated and [illegible] that Steinborn ex[illegible] him in strength, if not in skill, at wrestling.

"Pinky" Gardner will tackle Paul Bowser of [illegible] and Gardner says that he is in good condition for the match, while Bowser is always ready and out to win.

John Perelli, the rough-house grappler, will have his hands well occupied when he meets Leo Largen, the Swedish Apollo, who is ready to pin the big fellow to the mat.

PENN HAS TWO FRESHIES ON INTERNATIONAL RELAY TEAM

By CHARLES E. PARKER.

To two young men, who have yet to round out the first six months of their freshman year, comes the unique distinction of representing in international competition one of America's leading universities.

Elmer McLane and Sayman Kerr are their names, Pennsylvania is the university and the Oxford-Cambridge-Pennsylvania four-mile relay race scheduled for the Queen's Club track, London, England, on April 8, is the event in which they will compete.

And should the Pennsy team win, as is the expectation of its coach, Lawson Robertson, McLane and Kerr will be the first Red and Blue freshmen to win the varsity letter since the introduction of the one-year residence rule at Pennsylvania.

As a matter of fact, it was the ability of this pair of Pennsy yearlings that determined the yardage of the approaching London race. The invitation extended Penn by the British universities permitted Coach "Robbie" to name the distance to be run.

At the time the invitation was accepted by the U. of P. authorities everyone supposed the Philadelphia institution would stipulate a one-mile or two-mile route, for with Captain Larry Brown, George Meredith, a brother of the immortal Ted, and Don Head, Coach Robertson boasted three very able performers over the middle distances, and possessed several other varsity men who could have filled capably the fourth position on the team.

But the cagey Robertson, learning the ability of McLane and Kerr through their track workouts last Fall, and being mindful of the fact the British universities are free and easy insofar as eligibility is concerned, allowing first year men and graduate school men to compete on varsity teams, inquired if Penn must be guided by American or British college athletic laws and upon learning that no restrictions were imposed as to the makeup of the Pennsy team, promptly decided upon naming the four-mile distance for the approaching international event, and selected McLane, Kerr, Captain Larry Brown, Don Head and John Kerr as the five athletes who would make the trans-Atlantic trip.

And, on April 8, unless the coach's plans change, the two yearling athletes and Captain Brown will be sure starters in the race.

"Robbie" expects his team to break the world's record for the event. In one of the trial races employed in selecting the team all five were clocked in 4 minutes 25 seconds or less for the mile. In intercollegiate competition last season Brown shaded 4.20, while in the intercollegiate indoor meet McLane, running anchor for the Pennsy freshman medley relay team, was within one-fifth of a second of that figure.

Should these two stars, McLane running in number one position and Brown running anchor, achieve such marks next month, and Kerr and either Head or Kerr duplicate their trial figures, the existing record of 17 minutes 51 1-5 seconds, held jointly by former B. A. A. and Cornell teams, would be buried seconds deep.

The annual Oxford-Cambridge dual meet, staged last Saturday, gave indications that the Cambridge team will be much more of a factor than the Oxford team in the international relay.

In the mile run H. R. Stallard and W. G. Tatham, both of Cambridge, finished first and second. In the half-mile E. D. Mountain of Cambridge was the winner, and in the three-mile W. R. Seagrove, another Cambridge runner, was the victor.

This is the quartet which is most likely to face the Pennsylvanians. Stallard, the one-mile winner, and the man who forced A. G. Hill to the new British record last year, was clocked in 4.2[illegible] and undoubtedly will serve as the Cambridge anchor man who will face Larry Brown.

EXETER'S RELAY TEAM TRIALS IN APRIL

Trainer Connors Will Hold Competition for Places After Easter Vacation

Exeter, N. H., March 28.—Trials for the Exeter relay team for the National Prep school championship at the relay carnival of the University of Pennsylvania next month will be held on the Plimpton Field track after the Easter vacation in April.

Exeter has sent a team to the carnival since 1910, and the team of 1914, E. A. Teschner, Lawrence Williams, M. B. Orr and C. B. Hurd, holds the record of 3m. 26 1-5s.

Two members of the last year's team, B. M. Norton and S. C. Swede, are candidates this year, and the others runners who will form the nucleus for the team will be Captain Lundell, H. W. Burns, W. W. Ely, P. W. Claflin, K. M. Rogers and A. H. O'Neil.

The baseball candidates will also get their first out-of-door work early next month.

B. U. PISTOL TEAM ON LOSING END OF CONTEST

The Boston University pistol team lost [illegible] its first contest of the season [illegible]. Out of a possible score [illegible] made 1,0[illegible] and [illegible].

The B. U. pistol team was working under a handicap, however, for they [illegible] while Cornell [illegible].

The B. U. team expects to make a better showing in the next contest with Culver Military Academy as both teams will use the same calibre [illegible].

The B. U. rifle team is making arrangements for shooting off the tie with Georgetown. Each man will fire 200 shots, making the possible score 1,000.

AUSTRALIAN PUG HOT ON DEMPSEY'S TRAIL

New York, March 28.—Jim Tracy, pugilistic champion of Australia, has arrived here with the announced intention of eventually meeting Jack Dempsey in a bout for the world title.

Tracy is a native of South Africa, but went to Australia when young. He is big enough to aspire to any heroic role, standing six feet, three inches in his ring shoes, and weighing 210 pounds.

Pioneers Want Games

The Roxbury Rovers desire games with fifteen-year-old [illegible] teams in the State. The addition of Joy, catcher, and Daly [illegible], will greatly strengthen the [illegible], and "Duke" Dunn and Griffin will strengthen the offensive. The manager would like to hear from such teams as Shamrocks of Brighton and the Minute Boys of Concord. Managers please communicate with James Mack, 25 Rockford street, Roxbury.

Roxbury Club Wants Games

The Pioneer B. B. C. challenges the St. Bridgets of Lexington and the St. Annes of Readville. They also wish to meet any other teams of like calibre, preferably away from home. Address all communications to T. A. Walsh, No. 210 Parker street, Roxbury.

LYNN ENGLISH MENTOR MUST GET INFIELD

By FRED C. LANE.

Coach Sexton of Lynn English will have a difficult task building up an infield as good as last year's. "Buck" Burke, sensational third baseman, is the only one left of the famous infield that helped win the North Shore League championship last year.

"Dodo" Frazier, "Mike" Ray, Bobby Frasen and Joe Garrity have left the school. Coach Sexton must break in some of last year's outfield and pitching material for their places.

Nat Brady, who did well in left field, will be tried out at first base. Sol Harris, who plays all positions alike, will be tried out at some other berth than catching. Lenney Eldridge will make an effort to land a permanent position at second base while Bob Stickle will alternate between the pitching department and the outfield.

Stickle is captain and no better leader could be chosen. Bob is a sophomore in school and president of his class. He has served on the track, football and baseball teams in the past three years, winning his letter in all three sports.

Last season was his big year as a schoolboy hurler. He pitched two no-hit run games. Coach Harry Robertson, of Syracuse, on seeing [illegible] work predicts a great future for him.

The Lynn squad will hold its first outdoor practice tomorrow. Coach Sexton reports a large turnout, some 100 candidates now practicing daily on [illegible]. Many are candidates for the pitching berth: Fowan, Clarke, Coburn, Marts, Kennedy and Rod[illegible] are some of the aspirants for a place on the hurling staff.

Coach Jerry Hickey, who handles the Lynn English crew candidates, has [illegible] for the [illegible] boats to [illegible] for the first good day. The [illegible] row from the Farragut boathouse. Races have been arranged with all the leading private and public schools of this section.

The Rindge Technical baseball nine will make a strong bid for the Suburban League championship this year. The same team which made such a creditable showing last season, with a few exceptions, will take the field this year. John Johnson, who played shortstop last season, has transferred to Cambridge Latin, which will give one of the many candidates striving for the opening a chance to display his wares.

[illegible] for the first [illegible] will take his position behind the bat. Malcolm McBride, all-scholastic [illegible] year, will hold down the keystone hassock.

Walter Coburn, who turned in a fine performance at third base, will be back in harness. For boxmen Coach Linehan has Bill Hayes and Joe [illegible] in addition to many new prospects. The outfield will be made up of [illegible], Walter Coburn and Zaleski.

Following is the schedule:

April 19—At Brookline; April 22—Everett; April 29—Newton.

May 6—At Malden; May 10—At Somerville; May 13—At Medford; May 17—At Cambridge Latin; May 20—Brookline; May 24—At Everett; May 27—At Newton; May 30—Malden.

June 3—Somerville; June 10—Cambridge Latin.

Coach McDonald of Cambridge Latin will have a difficult task in building up a team to equal the 1921 nine which swept every logical schoolboy nine in New England before it. Isidore Zarakov, though still at school, is ineligible. Bill McCrehan and Sunny Foley are at Boston College. Gautreau will give his undivided attention to Jack Barry's Holy Cross nine. Cote will wear the colors of Dean Academy this Spring.

"Tubber" Cronin will be eligible for only a few games, in this year's fight, becoming ineligible after the season opens because of the age ruling.

Dr. Henry McMahon of Woburn has a fine bunch of hustling youngsters for this year's baseball team. The nine must [illegible] success of the [illegible] ranged.

The following is the list of games:

April 19—At [illegible]. At [illegible]. May 3—At [illegible]. May [illegible]—Wakefield. May 24—Salem. May 26—[illegible]. June 3—Melrose. June 6—At Watertown; tos. June 14—Saugus. June 17—Winchester.

NINE TRY OUT FOR THE HARVARD CREW STROKE

Nine different candidates for the Harvard varsity crew got tryouts at stroke on the first eight when Coach Howe gave all a workout with the same seven men in the boat.

By working them under similar conditions the Crimson mentor hopes to be better able to pick the right man for the all-important job on the varsity shell.

The men who worked at stroke were Roger Wolcott, Walter Amory, Gurnsey Norton, Lewis Lafarge, Stan Brown, Huntington Brown, R. F. Bradford, Story and Matthews.

8—Tabloid, Hazel Dale, Fireplace.

TUFTS NINE ON MEDFORD OVAL NEXT WEEK

Coach "Ken" Nash Has Baseball Squad Practice on the Old Campus

Coach "Ken" Nash will have the Tufts baseball squad down on Medford Oval next week. About seventy-five men have reported to date. The squad has been [illegible] every day on the old campus in the rear of the gymnasium.

Sam Kirschstein, star first baseman, [illegible] reported. It was doubtful [illegible] a few weeks ago whether or not he would be eligible to play. Kirschstein had six home runs to his credit at the close of last season, to say nothing of the "three-baggers" he made.

The Jumbo squad will probably turn out a team of veterans. Owen Keefe, one of the best [illegible] catchers in the country, has reported for the position behind the bat. Keefe has a fast whip.

The pitching staff is practically salted down. The three [illegible] ers, Captain W[illegible], [illegible] and [illegible] Jucel, will be the [illegible] box in spite of any new material.

The infield fight simmers down to that for third base. The [illegible] school has two candidates out for the position, Sullivan and Reiter. It remains an even bet as yet.

As regards the outfield, "Chucks" Roach and Finnegan have the two wing berths open to them. The centrefield meadow will probably be covered by Terrill, former Medford High star.

Ring Results.

Pal Reed of Framingham won the decision over Mike Morley of Hartford at the Casino A. C., Lynn.

A preliminary six-round bout was won by Young Blaikie of Medford over Kid Foster of New York in two rounds.

Milwaukee, Wis., March 28.—Dave Shade, California welterweight boxer, scored a technical knockout over Pinkie Mitchell, local lightweight, in the fourth round here when Shade landed a haymaker and the referee claimed Mitchell was not on his feet at the count of 10. Sporting writers disagreed, some declaring that Mitchell was up at the 10 count.

BOTH FAVORITES IN PINEHURST SEMI-FINALS

Chances Favor Golf Battle Between Miss Collett and Miss Cummings

Pinehurst, N. C., March 28.—Miss [illegible] of the Metacomet [illegible], Providence, and Miss Edith Cummings, of the Onwentsia Club of Chicago, favorites, won their second round matches in the North and South [illegible] and are favored to meet in the finals.

Miss Cummings and Mrs. M. J. S[illegible] of Oakmont will meet in one bracket of the semi-finals, and Miss Collett will play with Mrs. C. [illegible] of Ard[illegible]. Miss Collett won from Mrs. R. H. Barlow of Philadelphia by a 3 and 2 score, and Miss Cummings defeated Miss Sarah [illegible] 4 and 3.

All of the contestants played the five holes and Miss Cummings had [illegible]. Mrs. [illegible] 88 and Mrs. Barlow [illegible]. The courses were very fast, making the sand greens tricky, but rain slowed up the course and favored Miss Collett, because of her long game.

BOSTON "Y" FINISHES FIFTH IN HEXATHALON

Boston Y. M. C. A. athletes made a remarkable showing in the recent hexathalon athletic meet of world wide scope for reports that have been received at the Huntington avenue branch reveal the fact that Boston, with 4,558 points, finished in fifth place in the North American division, against seventh place a year ago.

Especial satisfaction is taken in the result by the Boston men because of the fact that the athletes of the [illegible] central Y. M. C. A. in Brooklyn were unable to make better than tenth place in the meet.

DUKE KAHANAMOKU TO JOIN U. S. AS PRO.

Oakland, Cal., March 28.—Duke Kahanamoku, world champion sprint swimmer of Honolulu, who recently announced his retirement from amateur ranks, is planning to tour the United States this Summer and appear at various resorts, according to a letter received here.

JUST THE THING FOR A SORE THROAT

WHAT you call "just a sore throat" may in a few days turn out to be something much more serious. With every breath you inhale infectious germs, and the soft tissues of the throat form an ideal soil for their growth and spread, possibly resulting in laryngitis, tonsilitis, influenza.

Always have handy the convenient-to-take, pleasant tasting, yet powerfully antiseptic Formamint Tablets. Dissolve one in the mouth now and then, slowly, freeing an efficient antiseptic that mixes with the saliva, and continuously bathes the infected membranes, checking germ life. Children like them. Relieves hoarseness.

BRAVES LOOK THE BEST OF NATIONAL CLUBS

By NICK FLATLEY.

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 28.—The Braves, seeing them again after a cruise around the most of the far flung South, appear to be in much better playing form than any of the clubs we have periscoped. We watched the varsity and the scrubs go at it, and the athletes showed all the earmarks of plenty of exercise.

Everybody has reached the stage where grabbing a baseball is natural, where curves and fast balls have no terrors, and errors are the accidents that happen now and then, as the motorman sa'd when he ran through an open draw bridge.

Persistent and perpetual sunshine down here has given Manager Mitchell the chance to drive his pupils all the time. He hasn't missed a session, which is a whole lot different from the history of the other camps, in Texas, where gales and rains have slowed things up quite generally.

T[illegible] is the reason principally why the [illegible] have decided to come back here next season and why the [illegible] and the manager have [illegible] the Lone Star State from the lis[illegible].

All the Brave pitchers, we find, are [illegible] to go, and in warming up they [illegible] at the catchers with [illegible] Summer vigor. Frank Miller [illegible] curve ball that turns more corners than a runaway flivver without a pilot. This ancient bird has surely pulled a real comeback, and unless [illegible] goes sour, which there is no reason to fear, he'll be a mighty valuable addition to the flinging corps.

With Marquard tossed in, the sharpshooters looked like the best in the league as a body, and now with Miller attached, the Braves have one real pitching staff, an aggregation that should haul the team right up toward the crest and anchor it there or thereabouts.

The ol' Rube looks just the same as ever. He knows all the pitching angles, and is really a better performer than he was when he had a bit more stuff and zip on the onion. He's a wonder, when you think back a bit. He waltzed into the large show away back in 1908. And he's never had an easy season since. He always chucked his twenty-five or thirty pastimes with never a sign of a lay-off. No other portsider in the annals of the sport ever went the fif-en-year route, and still lingered with the best.

Mister Marquard has trained easily and had very little trouble with his wing, which has the habit of acting badly in the Springtime. He will be prepared to go to the front soon as the 12th of April drops in out of the future.

The addition of two classy veterans to the five chaps who carried the team along last season makes the outlook very bad for any of the newcomers. Watch will probably keep his two young southpaws, and is giving the Tow[illegible] workouts now to determine whether he should stay on.

Lansing and Anderson of the new arrivals have a lot of stuff and can get up there some day, but unless some of the regulars bump into early trouble, the two will probably have to be farmed out for a space.

The same is true of the infield candidates. The securing of Larry Kopf was a master stroke. He's a regular shortstop, smart and peppery now that he's with a manager for whom he likes to work. He has added a whole lot of efficiency to the defence around second base, and gives the club Barbare to use as utility man, in which role he has mighty few equals. He can hit and field well enough to fill in for any length of time for any of the steady performers.

Christenbury will be retained as second filler-in, so Putnam and Dooley, the most likely of novice aspirants, will have to spend a while with the little fellows before they get back. Both are good enough, at bat and in field, to cause Manager Mitch to attach the string when he starts trading.

Boeckel, Kopf, Ford and Holke form a defensive quartet second only to the great Giant infield, one of the game's greatest, especially since the Brave first sacker has recovered from all the physical ills that chased him a year ago and hurt his usefulness terribly.

Our Brave outfield was one of the most useful in the circuit before [illegible] will be just the same again [illegible] same goes for the catchers, so as far as we can see there isn't a chink anywhere in the fielding or pitching breastworks. And the team can [illegible] the agate as was proved through[illegible].

Wherefore things are bright and cheery in the Brave camp as the last week's work rolls on and everybody seems ready for a snappy and successful attack [illegible].

Swinging around to the various headquarters we found the great respect entertained for the Boston [illegible] by both managers and players, especially by the clubs that expect to figure prominently in the money scramble. Nothing sensational has been scattered about from the [illegible] shows that everybody [illegible] and that accidents and [illegible] are missing, sort of has all the [illegible].

Best thing about it all is that the Boston players realize that the seats of the glorious await them, if they hustle. So they're doing that. For which a lot of credit is coming to Manager Frederick Mitchell, who in his quiet way, can steer a bunch of ball players as well as any skipper that ever came down the line.

The Mitchmen play the fifth game of the Senators' series at Tampa today with Oeschger, Marquard and Townsend booked to take care of the flinging. Frank Miller was ready to [illegible] in it any of the [illegible] warm up properly, as we [illegible] in the big league season. Warming up down this way though is one of the easiest things to do there.

The Yannigans took a tumble out of the Regulars yesterday in a six chapter practice affair, mostly because young Mr Putnam busted out a homer through the Palisades in right field with the bases clogged. He did it off Al Pierrotti, who was wild before the crash, and entirely furious when it happened.

Lansing tossed for the pretenders and was inclined also to pitch anywhere but at the plate. The trouble was caused by a brisk breeze which hopped in off the gulf just as the game started. The score, it might interest you to know, was 8 to 5.

THIRD GAME IN LOCAL SERIES AT ARENA

Champion Westminsters and Pere Marquettes Will Meet Again in Exhibition

In the hockey game tonight at the Arena the Pere Marquette Knights will tackle the Westminsters, champions of the United States League, in the second game of their special series.

The Knights will add Justin McCarthy, Len Morrissey and Leo Hughes to their lineup. They will give the Caseys strength.

Secretary Sullivan will protest B. A. A. men playing for the Knights. Sullivan used Peabody, Jost and Morton of Melrose against Sherbrooke, in exhibition game, exactly what tonight's game is.

The result of the game may cause Manager George V. Brown of the Arena to change his plans for the week end. The Granites of Toronto, champions of Canada, are slated to play the Westminsters on Friday and Saturday. Should the Knights win, making three straight over the American champions, Manager Brown may give Red Synnott's team one of the games against the Granites.

PAL REED GIVES MIKE MORLEY ARTISTIC LACING

Pal Reed of Framingham stopped Sunday School teaching long enough to take a ride to Lynn and give Mike Morley an artistic lacing. Reed was in fine trim, sending his left to Mike's body then to the jaw whenever he pleased, and the claret started to flow from Mike's nose in the second round.

The two preliminaries were of short duration, the first bout showing Bob White of Medford against Young Seiger of Revere. In the second round White knocked Seiger down and he claimed a foul but after examining him the referee gave the bout to White.

Young Blake carried too many guns for Young Costa of New York and Costa's seconds threw in the towel in the second round.

JOE LYNCH GETS AWARD, BUT CROWD BOOS AT IT

By Universal Service.

New York, March 28.—Joe Lynch, ex-bantam champion, received the decision over Johnny Gray of Brooklyn in a sensational twelve-round bout at the Broadway Sporting Club, Brooklyn.

The decision was booed by the crowd as Gray led in the fighting and had Lynch in a dazed condition two or three rounds during the battle. The weights were: Lynch, 120, Gray, 117.

EAYRES JOINS BROWN COACHING SQUAD

Providence, R. I., March 28.—Eddie Eayres, former Braves and Brooklyn player, has joined the Brown baseball coaching staff to aid Coach Snell in developing his pitching staff.

The Brown squad went through its first outdoor workout on Andrews Field in preparation for the opening game less than two weeks away. Sn[illegible] up a first class defensive infield with fourteen candidates [illegible].

By HUGH S. FULLERTON

Fellow fans, if you get as much surprise out of the final dope figures on the comparative strength of the infields of the major leagues as I did, you are in for a jar. The astounding fact is that Washington shows greater strength in infield attack and defense than any other team in the American League. True, the Senators in infield strength are, to all intents and purposes, tied with Cleveland and only a few points ahead of St. Louis. The three teams practically are tied for infield strength, with the advantage going to Washington by a few points. But that advantage is even more than the figures show—for the reason that the strength is so evenly divided among the positions.

It is not surprising to find that the New York Giants far outclass the National League in the infield. No one doubted that, yet it is a queer [illegible] to find that they rank so far [illegible] of the nearest [illegible] St. Louis a[illegible] hundred points back of the Giants. [illegible]

The only real upset in the National League dope is to find the Chicago Cubs so high in the rating. Of course, a great deal of this is due to the fact that Hollocher is a topnotcher, but there are contributions. This fellow Grimes is coming along, and Kelleher is coming to the front among the third sackers, which gives them comparatively high rating, in spite of the hole at second, which is not as yet even decently plugged up.

Boston outranks the Cubs in hitting power, but slumps badly in the fielding end of the game, with two comparatively weak positions, and Brooklyn owes what standing it has to attacking rather than to defensive strength.

Cincinnati has a minor league infield, with small chance of much improvement, while Philadelphia, with a fairly good attack will[illegible] the [illegible] of the season—even far below the Athletics who [illegible] them in rank in the American League.

That infield fight in the American League is a wonder. The dope figures, collected for the [illegible] compiled, analyzed and sorted, show that the hitting strength of Cleveland and St. Louis (that is, the attacking strength) is exactly the same as that of Cleveland, while only eight points separate the [illegible] strength—which puts the three leading teams so closely together that the difference amounts to nothing at all.

Again the Chicago outfit furnishes a surprise, for the figures prove that the White Sox are not all Red Faber. That infield still has a kick. It is due of course, in great part to Eddie Collins. Yet the team has a tremendous amount of kick on the infield positions, enough to put it ahead of both the Yankees and Detroit Tigers. Yankee fans, who have come to think their team invincible will suffer a sharp shock to see that on infield strength, the team ranks fifth.

Here is revealed one of the weaknesses of this team—a weakness which is covered largely by the press agent howls about its murderous hitting ability. This ability is not apparent in the infield dope, and it is extremely doubtful whether it will show greatly in the outfield figures—save in those on Ruth. With the team playing the straight slugging style of baseball, one would expect the infield to figure near the top since the men are loose to hit as they please, yet in sheer attacking strength the Yanks rank seventh, just ahead of Boston.

TRAINING CAMP NEWS

INDIANS.

Cleveland.—With Jim Lindsey in the box for the junior team of the Cleveland baseball squad this team defeated a nine composed largely of the vets of the club by a score of 3 to 2, in a five-inning game at Dallas Texas, yesterday. Lindsey allowed but two hits.

TIGERS.

Detroit.—The services of Sylvester Johnson, one of Detroit's promising recruit hurlers, have been lost to the team, at least for several weeks. Johnson was hit on the pitching hand in a practice game at [illegible] S. C. last week and an X-ray yesterday disclosed a fracture in the wrist. He will be left at Augusta with Ehmke and Dauss when the team moves Northward next week.

Detroit yesterday defeated the Augusta club of the South Atlantic league, 6 to 5.

PIRATES.

Pittsburgh.—The Pittsburgh Pirates took part in two diamond battles at Hot Springs, Ark., yesterday afternoon. In the tilt against the Yannigans the Regulars easily gathered the honors, 7 to 2, but when lined up against a combination of stars they were sadly overwhelmed, 21 to 7.

ATHLETICS.

Philadelphia.—The Philadelphia Athletics were humbled, 13 to 3, at Galveston yesterday by the St. Louis Nationals. The American Leaguers were able to collect but five hits, while the Cardinals hammered out nineteen safeties.

REDS.

Cincinnati.—Cold, damp weather overtook the Cincinnati ball tossers at Tulsa yesterday, but despite it they staged an exhibition game with the Western Leaguers of that city and won 12 to 2.

Jake Daubert's run with the bases full was the feature. Another game will be played there this afternoon.

YANKEES—DODGERS.

Beaumont, Tex.—The New York Yankees and the Brooklyn Dodgers begin a series of exhibition games here this afternoon. They will play in eleven towns in four different states before they arrive in New York on April 8 to play a three game series there just before the start of the season.

GIANTS.

Chicago.—The taste of four defeats administered by the White Sox was a trifle less bitter to John McGraw's New York Giants today as they considered [illegible] made yesterday off the offerings of "Red" Faber, premier pitcher in the American League last season. The Giants, by hammering Faber for six innings, ran up an 11-to-3 score and thus got their second victory in the pre-season series.

Champion Schaefer Leads Hoppe 500-446

Chicago, March 28.—Jake Schaefer, Jr., world's 18.2 balk line billiard champion defeated Willie Hoppe, former champion and challenger, in the first of three matches for the title, 500 to 446.

Under the rules the pair played until one of them made 500 points. Tonight each will begin with the score they made tonight and play until one has 1,000 points.

They will continue the contest Wednesday and play until one makes 1,500 points.

MONTREAL AND CURTIN IN TRIPLE A FEATURE

By JACK CONWAY

Young Montreal will have to be a very careful youth to avoid being knocked out when he meets Irish Johnny Curtin in a ten-round bout at the Armory A. A.'s show at Mechanics Building tonight. Curtin is one of those care-free birds who delights in bouncing right hand punches off his opponent's chin. And the record book tell us that when Irish Johnny scores with one of his goals from placement that the other fellow doesn't know whether he is gaining his livelihood as a box fighter or concert singer.

Curtin has a very good record. And, sad to relate, he has scored quite a few of his victories at the expense of our brave New England warriors.

So did Chick Suggs, New England featherweight champion.

[illegible] Island fans think so. They'll be at the ringside tonight and will have big chunks of U. S. currency which they will be prepared to wager on Montreal's chances of [illegible].

They are very strong for Montreal in "Little Rhody." This is very [illegible] as he has helped pay the [illegible] of many a Rhode Island [illegible] as a result of his ring victories.

[illegible] of Cambridge and Tommy Flanagan of New Bedford will collide in another eight round affair while Tommy Corbley of Worcester and Billy Stone of Quincy are also down to travel eight sessions.

Dave Shade, Pacific Coast welterweight champion, who twice held Jack Britton to fifteen-round draws, will not engage in any bouts before he clashes with Nate Siegal at the Arena A. C. on April 4. Shade was booked to take part in a couple of indoor contests this week, but his manager, Leo P. Flynn, deemed it unwise to do so, on account of the importance of the Siegal match. Shade will require all of his ability as a fighter if he is to win over Siegal. As both men are aggressive, two-handed punchers, the fans should witness a regular quarrel.

Eddie Mahoney of San Francisco will meet Tommy Co[illegible] in the main bout of ten rounds at Salem Friday night. Billy Campbell of Worcester and Frankie Ryan of Everett battle in the semi-final of eight rounds. Eddie White Walsh of Salem meets Young Silvia of Boston in a six round affair, Irving Goldberg of New York and Young Webber of Salem six and Young Mack of Lynn and Kid Fr[illegible] of [illegible] mingle in two [illegible].

The Boxing Menu

Young Montreal vs. Johnny Curtin, ten rounds. Freddie Madden vs. Dandy Dillon, eight rounds, Billy Stone vs. Tommy Corbley, eight rounds, Tommy Flanagan vs. Howard MacRae, eight rounds. Armory A. A. Mechanics Hall.

HARRY MITCHELL WINS OVER PATSEY PHILBIN

New Bedford, March 28.—Harry Mitchell of Providence, substituting for Charley Elkins of Boston in a ten round bout with Irish Patsy Philbin of New York, had little difficulty winning over the New Yorker.

PAT McCARTHY WINS FROM CAPT. BOB ROPER

Worcester, March 28.—Pat McCarthy defeated Captain Bob Roper in ten rounds in Mechanics Hall last night. The captain scored a knock down in the fourth round, but McCarthy piled up a comfortable margin of points after weathering the storm.

Kawasaki Will Compete

Pinehurst, N. C., March 28.—Hajime Kawasaki of New Rochelle, former golf champion of Japan, arrived to participate in the North and South amateur golf championship.

BEAUTY'S WORTH

The Delightful Love Story of a Quaker Maid

Fascinating Romance in Which an Ingenuous and Beautiful Girl Finds the Rainbow's End—Read It Here Then See It in Motion Pictures April 3

THE ACTION SO FAR

Prudence Cole, whose ancestors founded the Quaker settlement of Pottstown, finds herself as a little girl left motherless. Her father leaves her to be brought up by two maiden aunts, the Misses Elizabeth and Cynthia Whitney. While she is with them being reared in the old homestead her father dies. Prudence is the delight of her relatives.

WHEN A GIRL MARRIES

ROMANCE OF NEWLY WEDDED COUPLE

Anne Felt That Evvy Had Some Deeper Motive in Planning the Picnic Than She Had Disclosed, but Refrained From Asking Her

By Ann Lisle

Copyright, 1922, King Feature Syndicate, Inc.

EVVY'S face lighted up at my words.

She laughed lightly as she spoke, but I sensed an undercurrent of great seriousness. I felt sure that Evvy had some deeper purpose in the day's arrangements than she had chosen to tell me. But I did not question her and her [illegible]

The rest of our picnic day was attuned to [illegible] and to nature in her frisky green and blue and gold mood. We were both flushed and happy and windtossed when we drove up to the side porch late in the afternoon. As we climbed the steps a voice hailed us from the sun parlor and there was Tom Mason visiting with Evvy's [illegible] and altogether nondescript parents.

The Undercurrent

"Hello, you two," he cried. "You look like a couple of dryads or wood nymphs or what-do-you-call-'ems. Donna Anna suggests a [illegible] Florentine lady who has condescended to frolic lightly for the [illegible] But what astonishes me is to see [illegible] Evvy so blooming [illegible]"

Tom wheeled at his own words and a cynical smile twisted its way across his already bitter lips. There was a sudden hitch in his smooth phrases. He was faultlessly groomed as usual, but the look of steely alertness under his big and almost feline gentleness was blurred somehow. Generally he seems like a thoroughbred on a tight checkrein. Now he appeared more like a plodding animal with his head dragging low. Both he and Evvy gave me a half elusive impression of having big things in reserve.

"Being on a picnic with Anne and forgetting myself did me a lot of good," cried Evvy, losing no time, but opening the attack at once. "It made me realize how well I could be again if I were happy or occupied—or something like that. Anne was saying she thought a change would do me so much good."

"I wish I knew some one to chaperone Evelyn on a trip since she's so set on one," whimpered her mother. "But I ain't well enough to look after her and there's no one I know——"

"Oh, looking after!" cried Evvy, her eyes beseeching mine. "I need independence. Anne finds that the best tonic—being on her own. I mean. And she jumped at the idea of my taking a trip. In fact I got her to say she'd take my little roadster out and give it exercise while I'm gone. I'll tell you what to do, Anne. While I'm reading to mother and father, as I always do at this time of the day, you take Tom out for a spin in the car—just to see if you've still got your hand in as a chauffeuse."

I was taken off my guard by the way Evvy was making up things as she went along. I turned to Tom. He was bending forward, a quizzical smile lighting his eyes, his lips twisting a bit. He seemed to be challenging me to refuse.

To drive about the roads near Dreamwold in Evvy Mason's conspicuous blue car with Tom Mason as my only passenger, was not in any way to my liking. But when I opened my lips to protest against Evvy's ruse, her eyes [illegible] pleading that I felt would be heartless and selfish to refuse. Besides, there was no reason for insulting Tom by ultra conservatism. After all, if I felt that Tom was a good enough friend to call on in a situation as delicate as the Slim Darrow one, he was also a sufficiently trustworthy friend to ride about with for an hour of my visit to his [illegible]

Mutual Confidences

So, as graciously as I could I agreed to Evvy's plan and led the way to the little blue roadster which we'd left on the driveway. Evvy's car wasn't the same make as mine, but I had very little difficulty in adjusting myself to the slight differences in mechanism. After fifteen minutes I was ready to divert a part of my attention from the work of driving and to give it to Tom.

"I'm going to divide my attention between you and the car," I laughed. "And the attention I give to you will be of the most vampish sort. I was sent out to persuade you that Cousin Evvy ought to be allowed her own sweet will and that you're the boy to make sure that she gets her way in the matter."

"And you're the girl to see that the boy uses his influence—he, what?" asked Tom.

LOW-PRICED SUITS

—By Rita Stuyvesant—

SMART suits for general or [illegible] dressy wear that are [illegible] are a feature in [illegible]

[illegible] business girl on a small [illegible] suit of chocolate colored homespun is serviceable. The skirt is a simple affair of two [illegible] and is not too short, while the [illegible] is a hip-length affair [illegible] buttons at the front and long revers beautifully tailored. Slit pockets in a horizontal position [illegible] on the jacket, two on [illegible] side of the front.

[illegible] suit is worn with a white [illegible] blouse, a round collar, [illegible] and finished with a [illegible] of brown and gold, and [illegible] neatly turned on the outside of the jacket, and pinned with small fancy pins. A stitched sports hat of the same material, and brown cordovan low-heeled strap pumps finish the costume.

For the matinee, she wears a [illegible] colored georgette blouse, [illegible] a brown hat with [illegible] feathers, and a small fur piece. Brown and sand colored pumps and sand silk hose complete a fetching costume.

Grey homespun makes an attractive sports suit and is smart with grey footwear and a woolen sports hat and scarf. Blue is also smart combined with grey footwear and a grey sports hat.

There are also many smart tricotine and Poiret twill suits that are inexpensive. One simple model [illegible] shows a [illegible] box coat that flares out from the shoulders to the hips. A flame crepe blouse and hat would lend considerable charm to this suit and bring it up to the minute. Or one might choose a sand or grey blouse and light footwear to brighten a dark suit.

Sand colored tricotine has again made its appearance, but this time one finds the box coat [illegible] becomingly. A vest of periwinkle blue and hat to match would be smart with this suit.

Wool jersey is still in vogue for general wear, although the tweed materials are preferred. One finds the jersey suits in all the wanted colors at unusually low prices.

BEAUTY SPECIALIST TELLS SECRET

A Beauty Specialist Gives Home-Made Recipe to Darken Gray Hair.

Mrs. M. D. Gillespie, a well known beauty specialist of Kansas City, recently gave out the following statement regarding gray hair:

"Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home that will darken gray hair, and make it soft and glossy. To a half-pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and ¼ ounce of glycerine.

These ingredients can be purchased at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray haired person look twenty years younger. It does not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and will not rub off."

Best Recipes

Maryland Stewed Oysters

Put the juice into a saucepan and let it simmer, skimming it carefully, then rub the yolks of 3 hard-boiled eggs and 1 large spoonful of flour well together and stir into the juice. Cut ¼ pound butter in small pieces, ½ teaspoonful whole allspice, a little salt, a little cayenne and juice of a fresh lemon. Let it all simmer 10 minutes and just before serving add the oysters. This is for 2 quarts of oysters.

Cream Filling

Two-thirds cup sugar, 2¼ tablespoons cornstarch or 1-3 cup flour, ⅛ teaspoon salt, 2 cups milk, 2 eggs beaten, 1 teaspoon vanilla. Scald ⅛ teaspoon salt, 2 cups milk, 2 eggs beaten, 1 teaspoon butter, 1 teaspoon vanilla. Scald the milk; mix the sugar, cornstarch or flour and salt; pour on the hot milk and cook it over the fire for 3 minutes, stirring it constantly; pour over boiling water and cook it 10 minutes longer, stirring it occasionally; pour flour mixture over the beaten eggs, put it back into the double boiler and cook it two minutes longer, and add the butter and vanilla. Cool the filling before using.

ACIDS IN STOMACH CAUSE INDIGESTION

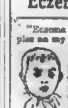
Medical authorities state that nearly nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, sourness, burning, gas, bloating, nausea, etc., are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach and not as some believe to a lack of digestive juices. The delicate stomach [illegible] is irritated, digestion is delayed and food sours, causing the disagreeable symptoms which every stomach sufferer knows so well.

Artificial digestents are not needed in such cases and may do real harm. Try laying aside all digestive aids and instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This sweetens the stomach, prevents the formation of excess acid and [illegible] sourness, gas or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and is the most efficient form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

Cuticura Heals Burning Itching Eczema On Child



"Eczema broke out in small pimples on my little girl's face and head. It seemed to burn and itch constantly, causing her to scratch and irritate it. Her face was very much disfigured for a time, and her hair came out in combfuls and was lifeless and dry. She was very restless at night.

"I sent for a free sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and found that they gave her relief so bought more; and within two months she was completely healed." (Signed) Mrs. William Beatell, 349 Lamberton St., Trenton, N. J., Sept. 3, 1921.

FINANCE AND BUSINESS

—By B. C. Forbes—

Are those of us who haven't reached the pinnacles of fame happier than those who have?

Has every station in life both drawbacks and advantages?

Warren G. Harding declares he has found it very difficult to live in the White House and remain human. Other people persist in treating him with a deference that he doesn't enjoy. His goings and comings are hedged about with forms, and ceremonies, and rules, and regulations, and precedents which he often finds most irksome. He finds himself compelled to act as a dignitary when his own inclination is to act as a normal human being.

* * *

President Wilson suffered similarly, even in worse degree. He felt isolation from his fellowmen. They would never allow him to forget that he was President of the United States and that his office demanded from them a dignified demeanor that utterly failed to warm the soul. He felt himself to be—and in large measure was—a man apart. He often complained to his intimates of this phase of the presidential life.

And did you read what the Prime Minister of Great Britain said on this same subject the other day? While visiting his native land one of his very old friends, introducing him to a local audience, referred to the fact that Lloyd George had reached the summit of fame.

Said the man who has borne a larger share of the turmoils of war and the equally trying turmoils of peace than any other man in the world:

"Mr. Davies has referred to my having climbed the mountain of fame and responsibility. Let me warn all young people who are here that the mountain is not by any means an enviable spot. The higher up you climb the colder it becomes, and the lonelier you will find it.

"You are open to every storm and every blast of wind. You are more exposed there to attacks of every kind. Often you will find yourself encompassed by mists, with no beaten paths. You must deny yourself many comforts and peace in home life."

I talked recently with one of America's very prominent multimillionaires. He spoke in a strain multi-millionaires have often spoken in concerning one penalty attached to the ownership of enormous wealth. In effect he said this:

"As you accumulate great wealth you find yourself more and more inclined to draw away from intimate association with your fellowmen. You catch yourself becoming exclusive. You become aware every now and again that you are disposed to hold aloof, to raise barriers so that other people cannot get at you easily. You begin to prefer mingling only with other men of high position.

"I have tried to analyze why this is so. I know that other men who have become widely known and very wealthy have undergone exactly the same kind of experience. As far as I can diagnose the matter, I think it comes about in this way:

"As your name becomes widely known and also, of course, your wealth, you become a target. All kinds of people want something from you. If it is your nature to be democratic and accessible, you find a procession of people waiting on your doorstep almost daily, every one of them eager to get at your pocketbook. They are not a bit interested in you; they are interested only in trying to get some of your money. Not one in a hundred, whom you don't know, is inspired by any other motive.

"In time, no matter how democratic your nature may be, you find it necessary to stop letting every Tom, Dick and Harry—and their familiar counterparts—cross your doors. If you didn't hide yourself behind one or more outposts, you would not be able to do any real work or attend to your own affairs. Your whole time would be consumed in talking with people having axes to grind.

"And so, after a while, you find yourself leaning toward the society of people who are well off or have positions of responsibility, people who are not likely to try to 'touch' you. They say that like attracts like. And, it seems to me, it works out that way. You feel more at home, you feel safer, in the company of others in your own class. I hate to think that this is so, but I find that it is so. It goes against my grain to have to keep myself apart, so to speak, from the majority of the people, but I don't know how to arrange things differently and be able to attend properly to my duties and responsibilities."

I hope I am not a snob. Yet I confess that I have found most multi-millionaires sociable, large-hearted, unbending sort of fellows once they become convinced you didn't want anything from them. I never, under any circumstances, do any bowing or scraping to the richest of them or the most successful of them. And I have repeatedly found that they like to meet some one who doesn't hold them in the slightest awe, who talks to them without restraint, who treats them as ordinary clay mortals. I know hardly one man of conspicuous achievement who isn't very much of an overgrown boy, no matter how austere a mask he may wear toward the public.

* * *

All of which makes me conclude that every station in life has its drawbacks as well as its advantages. Do you not figure it out the same way?

NEW HAVEN IS AMONG THE LEADERS

Sells at New 1922 High Late in the Session; Low-Priced Rails Rise

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor.

The New York market closed strong, a number of issues selling at their highest for the day in the last hour. New Haven was up 1⅜ at 20⅞ just before the close. This is its top figure for this year. Consolidated Gas was among the strongest stocks, being up 3½ to 110 late in the day. Wabash preferred A and Wisconsin were priced low-price rails to make good gains. Endicott Johnson climbed more than two points. Otis Elevator and Studebaker did as well. Trading was comparatively quiet, transactions approximating 650,000 shares.

After a heavy opening the market rallied quickly and slowly worked upward during the forenoon. While changes averaged small there were a few issues to make substantial gains. Lima Locomotive common climbed 4¼ during the morning, while its preferred advanced 3⅝. Both issues attained record highs. Equipments led the early advance, with steels next in line. Rails moved upward too, but oils and motors were laggards to some extent. U. S. Steel was one of the most active stocks. It made a fractional gain. Sears Roebuck was dealt in on a larger scale than usual, advancing more than a point. Montgomery Ward reached a new high for this year. Most of the selling pressure was directed against speculative leaders.

While the market showed it could easily absorb stocks, most of the talk heard in trading circles was bearish. This is due to the fact that the professional element is heavily committed to the short side and, as one brokerage house expresses it, "is praying for a reaction as farmers pray for rain." Strength was retained over midday and in the afternoon.

Electric Storage Battery was down more than a point during the morning but in the last was up five. It sold at 157, its highest in many years. Call money opened at 4¼ per cent. Foreign exchange had a steady start and rates advanced during the morning.

Tone Of Market Quickly Changed

By W. S. COUSINS
Copyright, 1922, by Cosmopolitan News Service.

New York, March 28.—In many respects the action of today's market was in direct contrast with that of yesterday. After momentary weakness at the opening, in which stocks were offered freely and at concessions in price, the tone of the market completely changed and a buying demand was ushered in which easily absorbed all offerings.

Prices in the equipments and specialties mounted up from 2 to 4 points and new high levels were made by a number of the leading industrials, specialties and motor stocks. On the better financial showing that is now being made by the leading industrial enterprises of the country, the securities of the companies are becoming increasingly popular with investors, who are exhibiting rare skill in the selection of their purchases.

The common and preferred stocks of Willys-Overland were weak and erratic all through today's market. The company's finances are said to be in good condition, but it has a white elephant on its hands in the shape of a $13,000,000 plant at Elizabeth which has never turned a wheel.

Liberty Bonds Are Strong and Active

By MUNROE ROBERTS.
Copyright, 1922, Cosmopolitan News Service.

New York, March 28.—Strength and activity in Liberty bonds characterized the listed bond market today, while in the open market a heavy over subscription was reported for the new issues offered by insyndicates.

The Liberty 3½s sold at 98.12; the first 4¼s at 98.30; the second 4¼s at 98.20; third 4¼s at 99.38, and the fourth 4¼s at 98.44. The Victory 4¾s were firm at 100.80.

Considerable activity was noted in the bonds of the local traction companies. The I. R. T. 6s advancing to 61 for a gain of ⅝, while the Third Avenue refunding 4s reached a new high for the year at 65⅛.

The railroad list was for the most part irregular, the New Haven convertable 6s losing ⅝ at 67½; Baltimore & Ohio 6s being off ⅛ at 98, and the New York Westchester 4½s down ¼ at 42.

United States Realty 5s moved up to a new high at 94—.

The foreign issues were also irregular, with some activity in the Mexican 5s, which sold one point higher at 48½. Industrial bonds were inactive.

N. Y. Curb Quiet; Range Is Narrow

By Cosmopolitan News Service.

New York, March 28.—Trading on the Curb market was less active today, with price changes in general of small proportions. Though the general undertone was steady, renewed pressure developed in spots, which brought about some declines. Postum Cereal was in fair demand. In the oil group the Cities Service issues were decidedly easy.

PROSPERITY ON WAY SLOWLY, SAYS EVANS

American Business Climbing Mountain on Which Sunshine Dwells

By C. B. EVANS.

Chicago, March 28.—A year ago, and earlier, we were trembling on the edge of an abyss with one leg over, and much of our fear was due to the fact that we did not know whether the abyss was 10 or 1,000 feet deep.

We found later, through the statistical surveyors, that the difference of level was about 40 per cent., as indicated by the decline in wholesale prices from the top.

It is as if the surface of the earth should sink about 5,000 miles toward the centre. That would make a terrible bobbery, but somehow we did not suffer relatively to such a catastrophe and we are still living and doing a lot of business.

We are not altogether through with such financial catastrophies, although some of the European countries have dropped clean through to the centre of the earth and are being burned up.

SUN IS SHINING.

We are doing precisely the opposite thing. We are facing a mountain on which sunshine dwells and we have nothing to fear but the attacks of the rocks and brambles on ourshins as we move up the slope. It is to be a slow process with a rather serious tearing of financial habiliments.

It will be much in contrast with the great uplift following the election of William McKinley as President, although it took well toward two years at that time to demonstrate to the average mind just which way we were going. After a start was actually made there was an upward bounding unparalleled in the history of economic performances. We might expect something of this sort this time, after the lapse of a year or two, if the eastern half of the world had not been so largely wrecked.

Signs that the ascent of the mountain has begun have been numerous latterly. Even steel is moving in quantity and price. A graduate increase in production and sale is seen in other directions.

GAIN IS JUMPY.

In the electrical business the gain is not gradual, but decidedly jumpy. The companies in this city are calling in more help and have a big pile of orders to contend with.

The demand for radio receivers, great indeed, is the smallest part of the affair. To judge from the statements of authorities in this city the telephone equipment of the United States has to be largely rebuilt.

It is not a mere matter of maintenance or repair. New devices must be introduced on a grand scale. Meanwhile the scientists and their following who indulge in tricks with sound waves are giving to companies orders amounting to many thousand dollars per day.

Naturally the question arises from time to time whether we have a solid foundation on which to stand. Yes, we have in the main. The soil is a little soft at some points, especially where they are making cotton fabrics at low prices out of labor at high wages, but that is only one industry.

The leading question is whether liquidation has reached a stage which justifies entire confidence. The evidence of such a condition in this city is really astonishing. "Liquidation is completed," says one authority and he almost tells the truth. The reduction of the Chicago Federal Reserve rate in this city to 4½ per cent. marks the situation. This gives the banks an opportunity to borrow at that rate and lend a little higher up but the weakness of the outside market is such that probably no great amount of rediscounting occurs.

CURATIVE INFLUENCE.

It will take a degree of revival which will be visible to the ordinary observer and will perk him up to do something for himself, to increase the demand for funds and start a rapid forward movement, but already we have seen some gains in the bank clearings, and already there are some powerful forces creeping around amongst us that will surprise the public when they have produced visible effects.

A curative influence is quietly moving about among the automobile companies, and the cripples are looking up with a smile of hope on their faces, weak though it is. Unless some plans now in hand go awry, the cure called combination is to make its appearance and some of those cases now considered most helpless will become first convalescent, then healthy.

Chicago Grain Market

(By Cosmopolitan News Service.)

Chicago, March 28.—Wheat was erratic during the forenoon. A brisk rally took place after the opening setback as commission houses absorbed the offerings and forced locals to cover. The undertone was quiet and strong. Seaboard reported slow export demand and that nothing was accomplished over night.

Corn was moderately active. Commission houses absorbed the offerings and the rally in wheat brought corn shorts in. Pressure on oats market was light and prices worked higher.

Provisions were slow. The strength in hogs and better tone to corn were stimulating influences. Hogs ruled fairly active and 5c to 10c higher at the yards.

Opening prices were: Wheat—May, 1.31½ to 1.32½; July, 1.18¾ to 1.18⅞; Sept., 1.11 to 1.11¼. Corn—May, 56⅛ to 56⅜; July, 61⅞ to 61⅜. Oats—May, 37 to 37¼; July, 39¼; Sept., 40⅛. Lard—May, 10.90.

Closing prices were: Wheat—May, 1.32⅛ to 1.32⅜; July, 1.19⅛ to 1.19⅜; September, 1.12⅛ to 1.12⅜. Corn—May, 58⅝ to 58⅞; July, 61⅞ to 61⅝; September, 6⅝ to 6⅛. Oats—May, 36⅞ to 36⅛; July, 39⅛; September, 40⅛. Pork—May, 18.75. Lard—May, 10.87; July, 11.10; September, 11.32. Ribs—May, 10.87; July, 10.37.

FIRM TONE TO RAILS AND COPPERS

Boston Market Weak at Start but Rallies; Curb Price Trend Is Downward

The Boston market had a weak opening and did not rally during the first hour. Improvement in the second made it irregular as to price changes and by noon gains and losses about balanced. Coppers and rails developed some strength, but packing issues were under steady pressure. Libby sold at a new record low price for the local exchange. It got down to 4¼. Calumet & Hecla advanced a point to 280, Mohawk 1 to 57, Copper Range 1 to 43, Agricultural Chemical preferred 1 to 66, Maine Central 1 to 35 and Waltham Watch preferred 2 to 40. Among largest losses were New England Telephone 1 at 113½, Swift & Co. at 101, International Products 1½ at 5 and preferred 1 at 15. Island Creek was active and down a point at its lowest. It recovered part of its loss. United Shoe, also off a point at its lowest, was another issue to rally a little.

The local market rallied with New York and gains constituted the majority of changes in the afternoon. Maine Central preferred gained 2 to 59. Boston & Maine and United Drug preferred had advanced a point. Mergenthaler and Calumet and Hecla sagged three. Boston Elevated receded 1⅜. Island Creek was active under pressure. It was down to 101 in the last hour.

CURB MARKET DULL.

The Curb market had a weak tone. Leaders were Boston & Montana, Crystal and Southern States. At noon Three Metals was up 1 cent at 96 cents, Alpha 1 cent at 32 cents and Mutual 2 cents at 33 cents. Among losses were Boston & Montana 1 cent at 34 cents, Crystal 1 cent at 95 cents, Southern States 2 cents at 23 cents, Boston Ely 1 cent at 64 cents, Daddy 1 cent at 4 cents, Denbigh 1 cent at 6 cents, La Rose 10 cents at 35 cents and Radio preferred ⅜ at 3⅛.

MANNING OUT AS FIRE HEAD SATURDAY

William J. Casey to Be Commissioner Until Tague's Term in Congress Ends

The resignation of Acting Fire Commissioner Joseph P. Manning was accepted today by Mayor Curley, the same to take effect on April 1 at 11 o'clock.

The Mayor will appoint Superintendent of the Printing Department Major William J. Casey, as acting-fire commissioner to act until Congressman Peter F. Tague, is officially named.

Manning has been at fire headquarters since the resignation of John R. Murphy. His reason for wishing to be relieved from further duty is made on the plea of business.

Manning is also chairman of the board of trustees of the Boston City Hospital. He serves both places without compensation. He stated again today that he knew of no changes to be made in the fire department, except those transfers that were asked for some time ago.

The city will have saved $4,000 in the salary of the commissioner since last November, or until Congressman Tague takes office.

STOCKHOLDERS OF NEW HAVEN MEET APRIL 19

New Haven, Ct., March 28.—A call for the stockholders' meeting of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company for April 19, in this city, went out today. The $27,000,000 European loan matter will be taken up and the question will be on the acceptance of an extension of time in its maturity date. There will also be the question of acceptance of the equipment agreement with the Federal railroad administration as amended under date of January 22, 1922; the approval of a lease to the New York, Westchester & Boston Railway Company of that portion of this company's right of way between Mount Vernon, N. Y., and Larchmont, N. Y., upon which said railway company's tracks are now constructed and operated.

A. E. F. DIET BELOW AVERAGE AMERICAN'S

Editor American:

Will you kindly correct an error that crept into an interview I gave your paper?

In quoting Secretary of Labor Davis as saying A. E. F. ate 1,540 calories per day and the average American ate 2,664 calories per day it should read: "The A. E. F. ate 1,540 pounds per year, and the average American ate 2,664 pounds per year."

The Proposed Mexican Oil Combine

One of the most important events in the development of Mexican oil lands since American capital was invested in that territory, is now impending.

The working plan comprehends co-operation of Mexican Petroleum, Transcontinental Oil, (controlled by S. O. of N. J.), Texas Co., Mexican Sinclair Corporation (owned by Sinclair Cons.) and Atlantic Ref. Co.

To what extent stockholders of the above companies may participate in the new organization, and the scope of its activities, is outlined in a special letter just prepared and ready for distribution.

Be Careful What You Wash Your Child's Hair With

If you want to keep your child's hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply put two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified in a cup or glass with a little warm water, then moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified.

ADVERTISE YOUR WANTS IN THE BOSTON AMERICAN

LOOK IN LIST FOR CORRECT TITLE

One Fits Picture Better Than Any Other, and That's the Right One

By TEST EDITOR.

Every participant in the Boston American's $5,000 Famous Title Test probably has a complete set of twenty-four pictures today, whether or not anyone has a complete set of twenty-four Correct Titles.

Today's problem will take a minute or two of your time, but once you have found the right title you will have no doubt that it IS the right title. Today, as always, "one title in this list fits today's picture BETTER than any other title in the list." That title, needless to say, is the Correct Title.

Any participant in the Test who has lost or failed to get a picture or two may have his needs supplied for the asking. A letter to the Test Editor will do the business. Be sure to send a stamped and self-addressed envelope. A large envelope, if convenient. Do not ask for any picture beyond No. 22.

WHICH TITLE?

The Famous Titles Test will consist of 60 drawings. The plan is to print one drawing every day and ask contestants to name its Correct Title.

Each picture was drawn to illustrate a specified title. In drawing No. 24, for example, Mr. Artist had before him one of the titles in today's List of Titles. Which title?

At the close of the Famous Titles Test the Boston American will pay $5,000 in cash awards to the 219 readers who send in the largest numbers of Correct Titles. These are the awards:

First Award	$1,000
Second Award	750
Third Award	500
Fourth Award	400
Fifth Award	300
Sixth Award	200
Seventh Award	150
Eighth Award	100
Ninth Award	50
100 Awards of $10 Each	1,000
110 Awards of $5 Each	550
Total	$5,000

HOLD ALL PICTURES.

Please remember, if you happen to be one of the hundreds who lately have entered the Test, that the pictures are not to be sent in one at a time or from day to day. Hold them. Write your titles. Take good care of them until the close of the Test. Send in no pictures before No. 60 has been printed.

Dear Sir:

I have lost Test Drawing No. 16. Please tell me how I can get another. I have tried everywhere in town without success. A. C.

Woonsocket, R. I.

Send me a stamped and self-addressed envelope.

Dear Test Editor:

Will it be O. K. for me to cut out the picture, without the coupon, paste them onto sheets of typewriting paper and make them into a book, writing the desired information below each picture?

Boston. MARY C. F.

Yes. Please read the Rules.

Dear Test Editor:

In No. 19, what is the boy running on?

Springfield. G. H. P.

READ THE RULES.

Every participant in the Famous Titles Test should read the Rules of the Test, which are printed on this page. It is a good idea to cut out these rules and keep at least one copy of them with your set of pictures. They were intended to answer practically every question about the competition which is likely to arise. If they fail, and there is something about the contest you wish to know, address the Test Editor, Boston American, No. 80 Summer street, Boston (8), Mass. If possible, your question will be answered here. If you prefer a personal reply please enclose a stamped and self-addressed envelope.

Under the customary rule of newspapers the Test Editor is not permitted to give attention to anonymous letters, but under no circumstances will your name be printed without your permission.

So many references have had to be made here to a recent Membership Competition that many who are following the Famous Titles Test appear to be still in doubt about registration. These readers again are informed that it was not and is not necessary to send in your name in order to take part in the Title Test. Continue to cut out the daily picture and find a title for it. The only notice the Boston American expects will be the receipt of your set of answers at the close of the Test.

Tomorrow, a very interesting problem, No. 25.

Rules of the Titles Test

The Boston American Famous Titles Test is a test of skill and judgment open to all readers of the Boston American, irrespective of age, living in any city or town in New England or Canada.

Two hundred and nineteen cash awards will be given by this newspaper to its readers who submit the largest percentage of correct titles to the sixty pictures to be published one each day for sixty days consecutively (Sundays excepted) in the Boston American.

The test will consist of sixty pictures, each representing a famous title, to be printed, one each day, in the Boston American, the first picture on Wednesday, March 1, 1922.

Participating in any other contest which has been run, which is now running or which may be run by the Boston American will not debar anyone from entering this test.

Every participant or any or all members of a family will be allowed to submit one set of pictures but each set must contain only ONE TITLE to each picture, and no participant shall be entitled to more than one award and not more than one award shall be given in any one family.

Each and every title must be written or printed on the coupon furnished by the Boston American, or on a page of some book form of itself, accompanied by the picture furnished by the Boston American, or a pen or pencil copy thereof, and must have the name, residence, etc., of the participant on each title blank.

Do not send your titles in "list" form, that is, do not write titles under one another on a piece of paper.

In case there are no complete sets of correct titles, awards will be given to the person submitting the nearest correct solutions, giving weight to skill and judgment.

In case of a tie awards will be made on the basis of neatness, judgment and exact accuracy, but if the tie cannot be decided in that way the tied participants will receive similar awards.

Under no circumstances should participants send in their titles before the end of the Test, as any sent in before the last picture is printed will not be considered. KEEP your titles from day to day and at the end of the Test arrange them in numerical order and then send them in all together at one time.

Time will not be a factor in making the awards. The first titles sent in after the Test closes will stand no better than the last submitted.

All titles must be delivered to the Boston American title headquarters, at No. 80 Summer street, Boston 8, Mass., within the specified time limit which will be announced later.

All envelopes or packages containing titles must be legibly addressed as follows: "Famous Titles Test Editor, No. 80 Summer street, Boston 8, Mass., P. O. Box 289," and each envelope or package must bear the name and address of the sender legibly written or stamped on the upper left-hand corner.

As all pictures in the Test will contain written or printed matter, if mailed, it is absolutely necessary that the packages be fully prepaid at postal rates, as mail of this character goes to the postoffice as first-class matter. The Boston American reserves the right to refuse to consider any sets of titles on which charges for postal delivery are not fully prepaid.

There will be no title or answer book to buy. Lists of Famous Titles will be printed in the Boston American. The list appearing will contain, among others, the correct title.

Participants who desire further information should address their inquiries to the Famous Titles Editor, No. 80 Summer street, Boston 8, Mass. Questions will be answered as far as possible through the columns of the Boston American. If participants desire personal replies they should enclose stamped and self-addressed envelopes.

The Boston American reserves the right to make any change in or addition to these conditions that it may deem necessary for fairly and properly conducting the Test, and the decision of the Boston American Test Editor on any question which may arise will be absolutely final, and the entry of a participant is a complete acceptance of all conditions and regulations now made or to be made.

WOMAN FROM U. S. SLAIN AT SHANGHAI

Shanghai, March 28.—An American woman named Snyder was killed when two Koreans ran amuck and fired on a crowd of tourists arriving on the American Shipping Board liner Pine Tree State, following an unsuccessful attempt to assassinate Baron Tanaka.

Eight persons in the crowd were wounded by bullets from the guns of the two men.

Baron Tanaka, Minister of War of Japan, was en route to Japan from Manila, where he had visited Governor-General Leonard Wood, the visit being a return courtesy for the recent visit of General Wood to Japan.

Armed with knives, guns and bombs, the two Kor[illegible]s were lying in wait on the wharf when the liner tied up. Their attempt upon the life of Baron Tanaka proved unsuccessful, he escaping unhurt. The two men then ran amuck on the crowded steamer wharf, firing wildly into the crowd.

Eight persons fell before their bullets. One of these was the American woman named Snyder, she dying soon afterward. She was on a world tour, being a member of a party of an international touring agency.

CANADIAN FISHERMAN CONTENDED LAUNCHED

Lunenburg, N. S., March 28.—The Mahaska which will be entered in the elimination trials next Fall and may meet the American challenger, was launched at 8 o'clock this morning. The vessel will outfit for the banks and is expected to be ready in ten days. The Mahaska has a bow like the Bluenose, but a little sharper, her stern is a halfway mark between the Bluenose and the Mayflower. It is not as heavy on top as the Bluenose. She is ten fet shorter than the champion and has more than a foot less beam.

Schooner Tota Loss

The auxiliary four-masted schooner Edith Nute was today declared to be a total loss by a representative of the Scott Wrecking Company. The schooner went on the beach at Chatham. Her position is such that it would cost more to pull her off than she is worth.

METHODIST CONFERENCE TAKES IN SIX PASTORS

Pawtucket, March 28.—The admission of six Massachusettes clergymen to the Southern New England conference of the Methorist Episcopal Church was considered today at the opening session here. Clifton E. Chase, Bridgewater, Marion J. Creeger, Chartley Samuel T. Lippincott, Chatham, Samuel Raymond, Holbrook, and Philip D. Norvell, Boston, will probably be admitted as members before the termination of the conference.

Four-Master Grounds

Avalan, N. J., March 28.—The four-masted schooner Clara A Donnell, with a crew of fiften men, went aground off here in a rain storm today.

RUM SCHOONER FLITS OUT IN NIGHT

Grace and Ruby Clear Under Cover of Darkness for St. John, N. B.

The Canadian schooner Grace and Ruby, which has been an unwilling guest at the Appraisers Stores wharf on Northern avenue for several weeks, disappeared from her berth during the night and is missing today. She went out without official sanction, however, but so mysteriosly that it is believed that she is trying to shake off the Coast Guard cutter assigned to watch her.

The schooner was seized with a cargo of whiskey outside the three mile limit February 23 by the cutter Tampa and brought into Boston. Her cargo was taken out and the captain and crew placed under arrest.

State department authorities at Washington, acting in conjunction with the Department of Justice decided to release the schooner, her contraband cargo, the officers and crew on a bond that she remain away from American ports as long as she is carying liquor.

A cutter was asigned to the job of watching her. Captain J. Wylie Ross of the schooner announced Saturday that he would sail on Sunday, but did not. Yesterday afternoon he cleared at the Barge Office on Atlantic avenue, after the Custom House had closed, and this morning the schooner was gone. She cleared for St. John, N. B.

VETERANS PROTEST TRANSIT COMBINE

More than 100 ex-service men, headed by Commander John L. MacDonald of the State Department of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, today appeared at a hearing before the Committee on Highways, in opposition to the bill of George Howland Cox for the creation of a Metropolitan District Transit Commission which would absorb the Transit Department of the City of Boston.

McDonald said: "I believe the organization of such a commission would mean the loss of many chances of employment for thousands of ex-servicemen."

Attacks on Our Laws

Feints of Big Business Associations to Render Passage of Their Pet Measures Easier

The preservation of the fifty-four-hour law and the minimum wage law, together with the attacks on the anti-stock watering laws, shows that we are at least holding our own on the surface.

Whether these assaults have been merely feints, while the Arkwright Club and the Associated Industries, and other organizations of big business, were concentrating on such effective legislation as the increase in the State constabulary, we do not know. But it is very likely that these big business organizations understand that they could make no change in these laws, but attacked them to make the passage of other laws, in which the Associated Industries are interested, easier.

McSwiney's Sacrifice

Liberty-Loving Men of Non-Irish Extraction Admirers of Erin's Brave Patriot

The second anniversary of the death of Terence McSwiney was kept in Boston last Sunday. We do not know how many men of non-Irish extraction thought of McSwiney on Sunday, but if there are many Americans without Irish blood, who love liberty and admire the sacrifices that are made for it, then there must be as many admirers of Terence McSwiney.

We know of no sacrifices made by our revolutionary fathers in the great seven years' struggle to throw British oppressors out of this country and to end British atrocities here that equal in its steady purpose and fortitude, the sacrifice which McSwiney made of his life.

The idea that McSwiney committed suicide by refusing himself food is stupid. McSwiney understood the psychology of men perfectly and his death equaled in value 20,000 recruits to the Irish Republican Army.

While a longing for liberty clings in the human breast, the death of Terence McSwiney and those who died with him under the same circumstances will remain immortal.

Keep the Water Pure

Presence of Oil and Other Refuse Should Not Be Permitted to Endanger Lives at Bathing Beaches

We read with interest of the action the Senate has, or rather has not, taken on the petition of Andrew A. Cassassa, that the pollution of fresh or salt waters by the vendors or refiners of petroleum or other products be prohibited.

Each day in the Summer, thousands of people, seeking relief from the heat, flock to the various beaches in and around Boston. These beaches in this section, by the way, have been looked upon as ideal spots for recreation. Last year many people, including a great many children, were made sick by the presence of oil and other foreign substances in the water.

Among the beaches popularly inhabited as pleasure resorts are Revere, Nantasket, City Point, Tenean Beach and Somerville Beach.

We think prompt action should be taken upon the matter, inasmuch as the mere presence of oil in bathing water is sufficient to keep many people from the beaches.

Think what such a delay on the part of the Senate means! Your own life may be endangered even this year.

Fifth Avenue of Boston

Handsome Stores Supplanting Old Type Buildings on Boylston Street a Source of Civic Pride

Modern brick-faced office buildings with handsome store fronts on the street floor are going up on Boylston street opposite the Public Garden, supplanting old-type buildings of another day.

It is very pleasing to the Bostonian with pride in his great city to note this progress. Two of three buildings in one block are finished, a third almost completed. All this building despite the fact that there are many offices for rent due to the period of business reconstruction.

It shows a faith in Boston's future, also a desire to make Boylston street, Boston's Fifth avenue, an avenue of smart shops.

There is no sight in an American city today that equals the Saturday matinee throng on Boylston street. It is the smartest appearing, best groomed shopping parade in the country. It is a procession of beauty and refinement unequaled. And for comparison, New York's Fifth avenue is included as is Philadelphia's Chestnut street.

Boylston street has an individuality distintly all its own.

Boston a Rare Book Centre

Boston is the national centre for rare books, prints and first editions. There is no other city in the United States which has such a mine of literary curiosities. Collectors of books from all parts of the country know Boston for this.

It is only recently that Boston had to give up to New York such rare books as: Four folios of Shakespeare, the first folio of Ben Jonson, the first editions of Spencer's "Faerie Queene" and first editions of Keats and Shelley.

When a New York banker took up the hobby to collect first editions of American authors, he sent his agents to Boston and vicinity and found many rare nuggets. This happened many years ago. To exhaust Boston of rare books is like emptying the ocean of its fish.

Death of Judge Hammond

The death of Judge John W. Hammond recalls the life of a typical, old-fashioned New Englander, who lived a long, useful life and was always an interesting figure as he passed along the street.

His career was quite typical of the career of successful New England men—village school, college, service in the Civil War, school teaching, student at law, lawyer, member of the Legislature, steady attention to business, slow development of practice, city solicitor, judge—a conventional life that probably paid good dividends in contentment.

If Roosevelt Could Talk

The Colonel Might Say a Few Unkind Things About the Members of Our General Court

The attention of the members of the Massachusetts Legislature is called to the provision of the Federal income tax law, which allows a deduction of $400 for every dependent person under eighteen years of age.

If a man were so fortunate as to have ten children under eighteen years of age, he would be allowed a deduction of $4,000. This, added to his other deduction of $2,500 provided his wife is living, would give him a total deduction of $6,500.

By the provisions of the State income tax a person is only allowed a total deduction of $500 on account of dependent children. The gentlemen who framed our Massachusetts law permit a deduction of $250 for each child, but adds that one may only claim deductions for two children.

This provision seems to put a rather heavy burden on those persons who have large families. Of course any law that aims a blow at large families is very pleasing to the advocates of birth control.

If Theodore Roosevelt were alive, he would probably say some rather harsh things about the framers of our Massachusetts income tax law.

The Legislature should amend the present law so as to give a person at least a $250 deduction for each child. And it should take this action immediately.

Ice Selling by Ticket

Dealers' Association Defends Defeated Bill

MASSACHUSETTS ICE DEALERS' ASSOCIATION.
Office of G. H. Voter,
No. 201 Devonshire Street, Boston.
March 11, 1922.

Boston American.
City Editor, Boston, Mass.

Dear Sir:

I am very much surprised to read your editorial of March 10, headed, "Defeat of Unfair Ice Bill."

The Boston American editorials are usually based on facts and are very clearly written. Your comment on the ice bill indicates that either you did not read this bill carefully or received your information elsewhere. This bill if passed, instead of being unfair to the poor people would have been actually in their favor, its sole intent being to provide a legal method whereby ice companies could, through tickets, check dishonest drivers and prevent any possibility of their being robbed as is not possible under the cash delivery system.

Your editorial states that the bill, to issue tickets, would prevent people from buying a five-cent piece of ice. This was absolutely untrue. Under the bill as drafted, a company or employe was compelled to sell a five-cent piece by ticket upon request, which is essentially the same as the present law, except that under the present law, company or employe is obliged to sell for cash instead of by ticket. Tickets in five-cent denomination were to be provided for tenement districts, but mechanical control of the sale would have checked dishonesty. All reputable ice companies have been using every effort for the last five years to wipe out the dishonest drivers so that all classes of customers would be assured of full weight. The dishonest pedlar and irresponsible small dealers are the ones who profit by the defeat of this bill and not the poor people, as is indicated in your editorial.

Cash-and-carry stations, which have been operated for several years at cost or less by ice companies of Boston in order that the poorer tenement districts may be supplied with ice at lowest possible rate, have always sold ice by ticket, and the poor people have certainly not found this to be a disadvantage.

Will you kindly give this somewhat detailed correction the same prominence which you gave your item of March 10?

Very truly yours,
(Signed) G. H. VOTER.
Chairman of Publicity.

Here is the proposed law which was defeated:

Chapter 94 of the General Laws is hereby amended by striking out Section 137 and inserting in place thereof the following: Section 157—Any person being engaged in the business of selling ice at retail, and not engaged in the delivery of the same under a contract, who refuses to sell from any place or vehicle engaged in the regular distribution of ice at retail, a piece of ice at the fair value thereof to any prospective purchaser other than an ice dealer, if such prospective purchaser tenders in payment therefor the amount of five cents or any multiple thereof not more than fifty cents in legal money of the United States, or, in case the seller elects to sell ice at retail by the use of tickets only, the equivalent of the money in tickets issued by him and redeemable in ice, or who, in case such election is exercised, neglects or refuses to give the prospective purchaser of ice an opportunity to purchase such a ticket from him, his authorized representatives and drivers, shall be punished by a fine of not more than $100.

Important Report of Boston Federal Reserve Bank Declares That Prosperity Is Here

Not often does a single-dry-as-dust bank report contain information of such widespread and vital interest to a whole section of the country as that in the seventh annual report issued by the Boston Federal Reserve Bank.

It is a statement of hardheaded bankers that Prosperity is here once more. It says in so many bald unemotional words that New England is leading the march back to normal "good times," and that the rest of the country is to follow.

One of the chief ingredients of good times is confidence in the future on the part of a nation's business men. Such confidence is breathed into everyone reading the Federal Reserve Bank's report.

Good times are upon us—you by work and faith can make them better.

IF today is the anniversary of your birth your interest will be largely in the direction of science. You have both curiosity and the patience of the true scientist. Your enthusiasm for studying, analyzing and delving into all problems is as flexible as it is thorough, and it makes no difference what the subject is, just so long as you can treat it as a serious question which demands a weighty answer.

Men and women born this date are inclined to matrimony and make splendid wives and husbands. Nevertheless they should avoid any hasty match, as with all their dutiful perfection in the home they are apt to prove cold and uninteresting lovers. Choose some one who will bring out the latent romanticism in your character.

Today will bring conflicting emotions. It would be safer for you to follow the even tenure of your way—and take no marked new action.

Much trouble awaits you in your business relations for the coming year. All matters relating to law or signing of papers should be carefully weighed and gone over before any decision is made or given. However, there should be no loss of money.

A child born today will be creative, but will always succeed best under the guidance of a firm and older mind.

Gandhi-ism in Egypt

By Taraknath Das,

International Secretary, Friends of Freedom for India.

GANDHI-ISM has spread in Egypt, and the British government does not know how to cope with it.

The latest move of the government is to make the noise all over the world that Egypt is declared independent and the Sultan of Egypt has been given the title of the king of Egypt, to work in co-operation with the British. The people of Egypt understand the real motive of the British declaration and appointment of a puppet on the Egyptian throne. The Boston American a few days ago declared it to be a great piece of hypocrisy of Britain. Thus the Egyptian people have declared:

"We declare that the more we are oppressed the more united we shall be until we achieve real independence."

Method in Egypt

The method adopted by the Egyptians is non-co-operation and boycott, as advocated by Gandhi in India. The nature of the non-co-operation movement in Egypt can be understood from the following document, which has been spread all over the land and being practiced with great intensity:

"Regarding non-co-operation—every Egyptian must cease all social intercourse with the English, in order that the English shall feel their isolation from Egyptians.

"No Egyptian should serve an Englishman or have an Englishman in his service.

"No Egyptian should consult an English doctor, but Egyptian doctors are permitted to attend Englishmen when requested, and Egyptians are allowed to co-operate in humanitarian and benevolent matters, even if such are British.

"No Egyptian politician is allowed to form a ministry until British policy changes; the English are thus forced to be exclusively responsible for a policy of coercion. Egyptians are unanimous on the subject.

"Egyptian officials should remember they are only the servants of Egypt, and no one has the right to ask them to work against Egypt.

"The population must address matters to native officials.

"Egyptian lawyers must settle cases, not before a British magistrate, but out of court; they are permitted to appear in defence of alleged criminals.

"Regarding the boycott—Egyptians must withdraw all deposits from British banks and deposit them with native banks for a fixed period; they must also take capital shares in the native bank in order to increase its capital.

"Egyptian merchants are urged to advise foreign agents not to ship merchandise in British holds.

"No Egyptian must travel in a British ship.

"Egyptians must refuse to unload British ships or take such goods to customs offices or give coal.

"No Egyptian must insure with a British company, and all existing British policies must be renewed, elsewhere.

"British merchants and goods must absolutely be boycotted.

"Reasonable delay is allowed Egyptians to clear British stocks, viz., six months for manufactured articles and building materials and three months for groceries.

"All Egyptian and foreign merchants are ordered not to retail British goods, otherwise they will be boycotted.

"A special commission will be formed to advise on the sources of importation other than British; the commission will publish circulars regularly advising the nature of the goods and the source supplied. The commission will have connections with foreign non-British Chambers of Commerce, and will encourage them to have commercial and industrial exhibitions in Egypt.

"Boycott is the best peaceful retaliation against British policy and must be used to end the struggle."

Unprofitable Rule

English government is well accustomed to the practice of coercion through blockades and such methods which bring about economic disaster to her enemies; and today Gandhism is paralyzing the British government in India and Egypt because its practice makes the British rule most unprofitable to the British.

Egyptian boycott and non-co-operation methods has become effective and thus Britain is anxious to make some kind of settlement with the Egyptian people. But there cannot be any settlement without independence of Egypt in the true sense of the expression.

France to Make Duel a Crime

PARIS, March 28.—The Anti-Duelling law, held up by fire-eating Senators who are accustomed to frequent recourse to the "field of honor," shows signs of passing Parliament following a denunciatory report by Deputy Lafayette, delegated to investigate the causes and extent of duelling.

The Deputy asserts that the old-time duel, famous in romance and comic story, where honor was satisfied by the mere prick of a sword point, is no more, and that in its place has come "a deadly combat frequently of swords, revolvers and knives, in which either one or the other of the combatants is generally seriously if not fatally wounded."

Lafayette claims also that such duels are made a social rendezvous for the elite, even women having been known to applaud bloody affrays in the Parc des Princes as though they were at the theatre.

"The only way to stop duelling is to make it a penal crime not only for the duellists but also for the witnesses," recommends the Deputy.

A bill containing this recommendation has been framed, and it is believed that public sentiment will force its passage.

Ex Libris

By Zoe B. Faber

THE inhumanity of humanity was what Mark Sabre discovered when, out of pity, he did the one thing possible for a fellow-sufferer.

No sooner had he stepped across the line which differentiates those who preach from those who practice humanity than he found himself being ground to a pulp by the cruel upper and nether millstones of conventionality as it is observed in the twentieth century. And all this during the war, when the milk of human kindness was on the table of more people than ever before.

Every line of the mental suffering that Mark Sabre endured in the process of this refining torture has been drawn by A. S. M. Hutchinson in "If Winter Comes" with such skill that when the climax was reached a masterpiece of one man's agony has been penned as you read.

It is a book so far beyond other books of today that, having read it, you will find yourself rereading it.
